Financing American Higher Education in the Era of Globalization William Zumeta,David W. Breneman,Patrick M. Callan,Joni E. Finney,2021-02-23 This ambitious book grows out of the realization that a convergence of economic demographic and political forces in the early twenty first century requires a fundamental reexamination of the financing of American higher education The authors identify and address basic issues and trends that cut across the sectors of higher education focusing on such questions as how much higher education the country needs for individual opportunity and for economic viability in the future how responsibility for paying for it is currently allocated and how financing higher education should be addressed in the future

Is College Opportunity Slipping Away? National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education,2008 Policy Alert is a publication series that summarizes important policy findings affecting the future of higher education This issue is based on an earlier study Squeeze Play How Parents and the Public Look at Higher Education Today from the National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education and Public Agenda This Policy Alert summarizes the findings of the study which explores how the American public views higher education today This report revealed a considerable unease among the public regarding their perceptions about higher education because while ever larger numbers see a college education as an absolute necessity for success many believe that opportunity for higher education is slipping out of reach for a growing number of individuals Over half of people surveyed think colleges are like a business focusing more on the bottom line than on education Nearly half say they want to overhaul public colleges Nevertheless these concerns remain in the background and tend not to be seen as a top priority Numerous factors have prevented the public from going into a panic about higher education availability but people are increasingly nervous Higher education leaders might be well advised to get out in front of this issue before the situation comes to a head Contains 20 figures This Policy Alert is the most recent in a series of reports entitled the National Center and Public Agenda Public Opinion Research Series commissioned by the National Center and conducted by Public Agenda

The National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education's Associates Program William Chance,2009 The author conducted annual evaluations of the Associates Program from its inception He attended one or more of the national symposia for Associates each year interviewed each of the Associates and submitted reports to the National Center As the number of participants in the Associates Program approached 100 and in 2008 the National Center engaged in a far ranging assessment of all of its programs the author was asked to provide a multi year perspective drawing upon the annual evaluations interviews with several Associates some years after their participation and with others who had participated in the program as presenters at the symposia as funders and as managers of the program This essay draws on the author s data observations and conclusions and was written for prospective nominators and applicants as well as for the National Center s Board of Directors funders and staff It provides information about the program s purpose approach participants accomplishments and future

Presidential Leadership for Public Purpose National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education, 2011 To engage presidents more directly in what is becoming an increasingly rancorous discussion of higher education's current priorities the National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education convened a set of presidential soundings and exchanges in the spring and summer of 2010 with funding from the Bill Melinda Gates Foundation and Lumina Foundation for Education The process included one on one interviews and a two day roundtable discussion to consider higher education's role in meeting the nation's need for a more highly educated and skilled population in a time of dramatic change and uncertainty In all the process involved presidents of 28 universities and colleges including two and four year institutions large and small public and independent proprietary and nonprofit A Presidential Roundtable convened in Leesburg Virginia in July 2010 included 16 of the 28 presidents initially interviewed who were able to participate The goal of these presidential soundings was to provide a vision of higher education's continued vitality in a time of fiscal constraint and to offer a set of actions that presidents can take to help both their institutions individually and the nation collectively to move forward

The Attainment Agenda Laura W. Perna,Joni E. Finney,2014-05-01 How state leadership determines effective higher education attainment Although the federal government invests substantial resources into student financial aid states have the primary responsibility for policies that raise overall higher educational attainment and improve equity across groups The importance of understanding how states may accomplish these goals has never been greater as educational attainment is increasingly required for economic and social well being of individuals and society Drawing on data collected from case studies of the relationship between public policy and higher education performance in five states Georgia Illinois Maryland Texas and Washington The Attainment Agenda offers a framework for understanding how state public policy can effectively promote educational attainment Laura W Perna and Joni E Finney argue that there is no silver bullet to improve higher education attainment Instead achieving the required levels of attainment demands a comprehensive approach State leaders must consider how performance in one area such as degree completion is connected to performance in other areas such as preparation or affordability how particular policies interact to produce expected and unexpected outcomes and how policy approaches must be adapted to reflect their particular context The authors call for greater attention to the state role in providing policy leadership to advance a cohesive public agenda for higher education and adopting public policies that not only increase the demand for and supply of higher education but also level the playing field for higher educational opportunity The insights offered in The Attainment Agenda have important implications for public policymakers college and university leaders and educational researchers interested in ensuring sustained higher education attainment
