The Fourth Industrial Revolution Klaus Schwab, 2017-01-03 World renowned economist Klaus Schwab Founder and Executive Chairman of the World Economic Forum explains that we have an opportunity to shape the fourth industrial revolution which will fundamentally alter how we live and work Schwab argues that this revolution is different in scale scope and complexity from any that have come before Characterized by a range of new technologies that are fusing the physical digital and biological worlds the developments are affecting all disciplines economies industries and governments and even challenging ideas about what it means to be human Artificial intelligence is already all around us from supercomputers drones and virtual assistants to 3D printing DNA sequencing smart thermostats wear able sensors and microchips smaller than a grain of sand But this is just the beginning nanomaterials 200 times stronger than steel and a million times thinner than a strand of hair and the first transplant of a 3D printed liver are already in development Imagine smart factories in which global systems of manufacturing are coordinated virtually or implantable mobile phones made of biosynthetic materials The fourth industrial revolution says Schwab is more significant and its ramifications more profound than in any prior period of human history He outlines the key technologies driving this revolution and discusses the major impacts expected on government business civil society and individuals

Schwab also offers bold ideas on how to harness these changes and shape a better future one in which technology empowers people rather than replaces them progress serves society rather than disrupts it and in which innovators respect moral and ethical boundaries rather than cross them We all have the opportunity to contribute to developing new frame works that advance progress

World Development Report 2019 World Bank, 2018-10-31

Work is constantly reshaped by technological progress New ways of production are adopted markets expand and societies evolve But some changes provoke more attention than others in part due to the vast uncertainty involved in making predictions about the future The 2019 World Development Report will study how the nature of work is changing as a result of advances in technology today Technological progress disrupts existing systems A new social contract is needed to smooth the transition and guard against rising inequality Significant investments in human capital throughout a person's lifecycle are vital to this effort If workers are to stay competitive against machines they need to train or retool existing skills A social protection system that includes a minimum basic level of protection for workers and citizens can complement new forms of employment Improved private sector policies to encourage startup activity and competition can help countries compete in the digital age Governments also need to ensure that firms pay their fair share of taxes in part to fund this new social contract The 2019 World Development Report presents an analysis of these issues based upon the available evidence

World Development Report 2016 World Bank Group, 2016-01-14

Digital technologies are spreading rapidly but digital dividends the broader benefits of faster growth more jobs and better services are not If more than 40 percent of adults in East Africa pay their utility bills using a mobile phone why can't others around the world do the same If 8 million entrepreneurs in China one third of them women can use an e-commerce platform to export goods to 120 countries why can't entrepreneurs elsewhere achieve the same global reach And if India can provide unique digital identification to 1 billion people in five years and thereby reduce corruption by billions of dollars why can't other countries replicate its success Indeed what's holding back countries from realizing the profound and transformational effects that digital technologies are supposed to deliver Two main reasons First nearly 60 percent of the world's population are still offline and can't participate in the digital economy in any meaningful way Second and more important the benefits of digital technologies can be offset by growing risks Startups can disrupt incumbents but not when vested interests and regulatory uncertainty obstruct competition and the entry of new firms Employment opportunities may be greater but not when the labor market is polarized The internet can be a platform for universal empowerment but not when it becomes a tool for state control and elite capture The World Development Report 2016 shows that while the digital revolution has forged ahead its analog complements the regulations that promote entry and competition the skills that enable workers to access and then leverage the new economy and the institutions that are accountable to citizens have not kept pace And when these analog complements to digital investments are absent the development impact can be disappointing What then should countries do They should formulate digital development strategies that are much broader than current information and communication technology ICT strategies They should create a policy and institutional environment for technology that fosters the greatest benefits In short they need to build a strong analog foundation to deliver digital dividends to everyone everywhere
