

Answers and Explanations

- The correct answer is (C). Comparative psychologists look for similarities between species.
- The correct answer is (D). Industrial and organizational psychologists work with management and staff in the world of business.
- The correct answer is (A). In naturalistic observation, the researcher tries to be as inconspicuous as possible so as not to influence the situation.
- The correct answer is (C). The only way to determine whether one variable causes another is to do an experiment. In an experiment, one factor (variable) is manipulated while all other variables are held constant. Non-experimental methods yield correlational results only. Researchers cannot make causal statements from correlational results.
- The correct answer is (A). An independent variable is the variable that experimenters change while holding all other variables constant. In this case, some participants got more alcohol and some got less. Hitting pylons is an outcome (dependent variable) of the amount of alcohol consumed. The researchers did not manipulate individual driving ability.
- The correct answer is (D). Replication involves repeating a study to determine whether the results are supported or whether they occurred due to chance.
- The correct answer is (A). Psychoanalytic theory assumes that the unconscious plays a major role in human behavior.
- The correct answer is (E). Watson was an extreme behaviorist.
- The correct answer is (A). All brain cells transmit messages.
- The correct answer is (C). The axon terminal button at the end of the neuron (nerve cell) communicates with other neurons by secreting neurotransmitters, which cross the synaptic gap.
- The correct answer is (B). Activity within cells is electrical and operates on the "all-or-none" principle. Chemicals called neurotransmitters communicate information from one neuron to another by drifting across the synaptic gap.
- The correct answer is (C). The brain and spinal cord make up the central nervous system; all other parts of the body are controlled by the peripheral nervous system.
- The correct answer is (D). The thalamus determines which messages get sent to the various parts of the brain.
- The correct answer is (A). The limbic system is the emotional center of the brain.
