Shadows on the Tundra Dalia Grinkevičiūtė, 2018-06-19 An extraordinary piece of international survival literature joining the likes of Primo Levi and Anne Frank In 1941 14 year old Dalia and her family are deported from their native Lithuania to a labour camp in Siberia As the strongest member of her family she submits to twelve hours a day of manual labour At the age of 21 she escapes the gulag and returns to Lithuania She writes her memories on scraps of paper and buries them in the garden fearing they might be discovered by the KGB They are not found until 1991 four years after her death This is the story Dalia buried The immediacy of her writing bears witness not only to the suffering she endured but also the hope that sustained her It is a Lithuanian tale that like its author beats the odds to survive Why Peirene chose to publish this book There is only one word to describe this book extraordinary It blew me away when I first read it in German translation Dalia s account goes far beyond a memoir This is an outstanding piece of literature which should be read by anyone who wishes to understand the Soviet repression A distressing historic document and a literary work of great significance Neue Zürcher Zeitung An incredible force of language the story of constant indignation JFrankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung
