Zhang, Saheli Datta Burton, 2022-03-15 This book provides a powerful diagnosis of why the global governance of science struggles in the face of emerging powers Through unpacking critical events in China and India over the past twenty years it demonstrates that the subversiveness assumed in the two countries rise in the life sciences reflects many of the regulatory challenges that are shared worldwide It points to a decolonial imperative for science governance to be responsive and effective in a cosmopolitan world By highlighting epistemic injustice within contemporary science the book extends theories of decolonisation

Technologies in Biomedical and Life Sciences Education Harry J. Witchel, Michael W. Lee, 2022-06-24

This contributed volume focuses on understanding the educational strengths and weaknesses of mediated content including media as a learning supplement in comparison to traditional face to face learning Each chapter includes research on and a broad brush summary of approaches to combining life sciences education with educational technologies The chapters are organized into four main sections each of which focuses on a key question regarding the consequences of incorporating media into education In this regard the authors highlight how educational technology is both a bridge and barrier to student access and inclusivity Further they address the ongoing discussion as to whether students need to be present for lectures and on how having agency in their own learning can improve both retention and conceptual understanding To link the content to current events the authors also shed light on the impact that the COVID 19 pandemic is having on the continuity of educational programs and on the growing importance of educational technologies Consequently the book offers life science educators valuable guidance on the technologies already available and an outlook on what is yet to come

Landscapes of Collectivity in the Life Sciences Snait B. Gissis, Ehud Lamm, Ayelet Shavit, 2018-01-12

Broad perspective on collectivity in the life sciences from microorganisms to human consensus and the theoretical and empirical opportunities and challenges Many researchers and scholars in the life sciences have become increasingly critical of the traditional methodological focus on the individual This volume counters such methodological individualism by exploring recent and influential work in the life sciences that utilizes notions of collectivity sociality rich interactions and emergent phenomena as essential explanatory tools to handle numerous persistent scientific questions in the life sciences The contributors consider case studies of collectivity that range from microorganisms to human consensus discussing theoretical and empirical challenges and the innovative methods and solutions scientists have devised The contributors offer historical philosophical and biological perspectives on collectivity and describe collective phenomena seen in insects the immune system communication and human collectivity with examples ranging from cooperative transport in the longhorn crazy ant to the evolution of autobiographical memory They examine ways of explaining collectivity including case studies and modeling approaches and explore collectivity's explanatory power They present a comprehensive look at a specific case of collectivity the Holobiont notion the idea of a multi species collective a host and diverse microorganisms and the hologenome theory which posits that the holobiont and its hologenome are a unit of adaptation The volume concludes with reflections on the work of the late physicist Eshel Ben Jacob pioneer in the study of collective phenomena in living systems Contributors Oren Bader
