Sexuality and Aging Jennifer Hillman,2012-03-27 Despite continuing ageist beliefs that sexuality is a privilege designed only for the young and physically healthy research continues to indicate that the majority of older adults maintain interest in sexuality and may engage in fulfilling sexual behavior well into their last decade of life Unfortunately many professionals remain unaware of general knowledge of elderly sexuality including the expected and normal physiological changes that can occur within the context of both male and female aging The presence of chronic illness and other medical problems certainly can influence the expression of an aging adult s sexuality and emergent research suggests that there are effective ways to cope with menopause heart disease arthritis incontinence diabetes sleep disorders breast cancer prostate cancer and erectile dysfunction ED among others Dramatic changes have taken place within the last decade alone in terms of non surgical treatment for incontinence and ED with forms of sex therapy biofeedback and PDE 5 inhibitors Regrettably many aging adults and their care providers remain unaware of their increased risk factors for STDs including HIV infection via lack of knowledge changes in the vaginal lining and typical declines in immune function Estimates suggest that by the year 2020 more than half of all individuals living with HIV will be over the age of 50 Although some high quality professional books are available for clinicians they tend to be disjointed research bibliographies edited volumes on a narrowly focused aspect of elderly sexuality or texts that are more than 10 years old With the extent of new information available regarding sexuality and aging an up to date empirically based text is necessary

The Mental Health and Substance Use Workforce for Older Adults Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Care Services,Committee on the Mental Health Workforce for Geriatric Populations,2012-10-26 At least 5 6 million to 8 million nearly one in five older adults in America have one or more mental health and substance use conditions which present unique challenges for their care With the number of adults age 65 and older projected to soar from 40 3 million in 2010 to 72 1 million by 2030 the aging of America holds profound consequences for the nation For decades policymakers have been warned that the nation's health care workforce is ill equipped to care for a rapidly growing and increasingly diverse population. In the specific disciplines of mental health and substance use, there have been similar warnings about serious workforce shortages, insufficient workforce diversity, and lack of basic competence and core knowledge in key areas. Following its 2008 report highlighting the urgency of expanding and strengthening the geriatric health care workforce, the IOM was asked by the Department of Health and Human Services to undertake a complementary study on the geriatric mental health and substance use workforce. The Mental Health and Substance Use Workforce for Older Adults In Whose Hands assesses the needs of this population and the workforce that serves it. The breadth and magnitude of inadequate workforce training and personnel shortages have grown to such proportions, says the committee, that no single approach nor a few isolated changes in disparate federal agencies or programs can adequately address the issue. Overcoming these challenges will require focused and coordinated action by all.
