Suspension Geometry and Computation John C. Dixon, 2009-10-27 Revealing suspension geometry design methods in unique detail. John Dixon shows how suspension properties such as bump steer, roll steer, bump camber, compliance, steer and roll centres are analysed and controlled by the professional engineer. He emphasizes the physical understanding of suspension parameters in three dimensions and methods of their calculation using examples, programs, and discussion of computational problems. The analytical and design approach taken is a combination of qualitative explanation for physical understanding with algebraic analysis of linear and non linear coefficients and detailed discussion of computer simulations and related programming methods. Includes a detailed and comprehensive history of suspension and steering system design, fully illustrated with a wealth of diagrams. Explains suspension characteristics and suspension geometry coefficients providing a unique and in depth understanding of suspension design not found elsewhere. Describes how to obtain desired coefficients and the limitations of particular suspension types with essential information for suspension designers, chassis technicians, and anyone else with an interest in suspension characteristics and vehicle dynamics. Discusses the use of computers in suspension geometry analysis with programming techniques and examples of suspension solution including advanced discussion of three dimensional computational geometry applied to suspension design. Explains in detail the direct and iterative solutions of suspension geometry.

Crisis Management in the Food and Drinks Industry: A Practical Approach Colin Doeg, 2010-12-06 Few titles could be timelier than the second edition of Crisis Management in the Food and Drinks Industry A Practical Approach. The world is worrying about a human pandemic arising from the avian flu epidemic that is spreading from the Far East the implications of which could be as great for the food industry as were the outbreaks of foot and mouth disease and BSE. This practical and greatly expanded edition by media and public relations veteran Colin Doeg focuses on the communications aspects of dealing with a crisis. It is global in its coverage of the subject reviewing practices and requirements in countries ranging from the USA and the UK to Australia and New Zealand. Doeg offers advice ranging from preparing for the unthinkable to the dramatic expansion of the Internet avoiding being caught off guard by a situation the ramifications of product tampering and managing an actual crisis. Advice is also offered on dealing with extremist organizations and terrorist threats as well as bioterrorism a clear and present danger and a number of problems facing the food industry including the practice of selling meat unfit for human consumption and the threat posed by the increasing toxicity of fish due to the rising pollution of the world's oceans. In a special late chapter written only three months before publication the author looks ahead to events which he believes will shape the world of crisis management in the future including the empowering influence of the Internet during the 2004 Asian Tsunami the discovery of the illegal dye Sudan 1 Red in millions of food products and the fears of a pandemic arising from the spreading outbreak of avian flu. Examples of typical documents like a crisis plan for a business a crisis checklist a press release announcing a product recall an announcement to employees and a checklist for anyone dealing with a threatening phone call are provided. Also included is a list of sources of information and assistance in the event of a product crisis. Crisis Management in the Food and Drinks Industry is the only title dealing specifically with this crucial subject in relation to the food industry. As such it is relevant not only to those in the food industry but also to marketing and senior management in general in the fields of agriculture public health and law enforcement.

Geographic Citizen Science Design Artemis Skarlatidou, Muki Haklay, 2021-02-04 Little did Isaac Newton Charles Darwin and other gentlemen scientists know when they were making their scientific discoveries that some centuries later they would inspire a new field of scientific practice and innovation called citizen science. The current growth and availability of citizen science projects and relevant applications to support citizen involvement is massive every citizen has an opportunity to become a scientist and contribute to a scientific discipline without having any professional qualifications. With geographic interfaces being the common approach to support collection analysis and dissemination of data contributed by participants geographic citizen science is being approached from different angles. Geographic Citizen Science Design takes an anthropological and Human Computer Interaction HCI stance to provide the theoretical and methodological foundations to support the design development and evaluation of citizen science projects and their user friendly applications. Through a careful selection of case studies in the urban and non urban contexts of the Global North and South the chapters provide insights into the design and interaction barriers as well as on the lessons learned from the engagement of a diverse set of participants for example literate and non literate people with a range of technical skills and with different cultural backgrounds. Looking at the field through the lenses of specific case studies the book captures the current state of the art in research and development of geographic citizen science and provides critical insight to inform technological innovation and future research in this area.

Program Evaluation Theory and Practice Donna M. Mertens, Amy T. Wilson, 2012-02-20 This engaging text takes an evenhanded approach to major theoretical paradigms in evaluation and builds a bridge from them to evaluation practice Featuring helpful checklists procedural steps provocative questions that invite readers to explore their own theoretical assumptions and practical exercises the book provides concrete guidance for conducting large and small scale evaluations Numerous sample studies many with reflective commentary from the evaluators reveal the process through which an evaluator incorporates a paradigm into an actual research project The book shows how theory informs methodological choices the specifics of planning implementing and using evaluations It offers balanced coverage of quantitative qualitative and mixed methods approaches Useful pedagogical features include Examples of large and small scale evaluations from multiple disciplines Beginning of chapter reflection questions that set the stage for the material covered Extending your thinking questions and practical activities that help readers apply particular theoretical paradigms in their own evaluation projects Relevant Web links including pathways to more details about sampling data collection and analysis Boxes offering a closer look at key evaluation concepts and additional studies Checklists for readers to determine if they have followed recommended practice A companion website with resources for further learning
