Conflict Areas in the Caucasus and Central Asia Arda Özkan, Gökürk Tüysüzoglu, 2022-01-25 The Caucasus region and Central Asia covers a large part of the Eurasian Both regions where Russia and China have a serious influence and visibility also have a location that reflects the hegemonic expectations of both these actors In this context domestic political developments and even internal conflicts in the region can be linked to the policies of Russia and China to a certain extent and have the potential to affect the motives of these two powers Although Central Asia is rich in natural resources it is landlocked and has lagged other nations in terms of agricultural production and industrial development Although the Caucasus is divided into the North the territory of Russia and the South where three independent states are located it is insufficient in terms of production and development The Caucasus stands out especially with energy projects and its feature of being a commercial corridor Dictionary of Geography, Etc. New Edition, Revised to August 1864 Alexander Keith JOHNSTON (the Elder.), 1867 Secured Transactions Law Reform in Africa Marek Dubovec, Louise Gullifer, 2019-10-31 Over the last few decades many countries have reformed their secured transactions law One of the main reasons has been the clear link between reform and the availability of credit and the drive to improve access to finance particularly for micro small and medium sized enterprises This book focuses particularly on developing economies in Africa which have legal frameworks influenced by English French Belgian Roman Dutch and other laws Reform in this area of law across African countries has taken a number of forms which are explored and discussed in this book Secured Transactions Law Reform in Africa is a mixture of a critical description of the pre reform law and practice and the reform process itself It also includes a comparative analysis of the legal provisions and an examination of the early results of the reforms The book sets out a road map for the future of secured transactions reform primarily in Africa but also in other countries that have undertaken or are contemplating similar reforms This book is the second in a series of books about Secured Transactions Law in countries around the world and its reform both on a national and an international scale The first book Secured Transactions Law Reform Principles Policies and Practice was published in 2016 Indian Muslims Riaz Hassan, 2016-10-17 Research shows that Indian Muslims experience higher levels of development and equity deficits Indian Muslims are also predicted to become the largest Muslim population in the world by 2050 This increase in numbers might exacerbate their relative deprivation creating a disjunction between India's constitutional promises of equality of opportunity for citizens of a secular democracy including for minorities and the existential reality This will create social and political conditions that could undermine the stability of the country's democracy and make Indian Muslims a security threat which would have not only national but also global ramifications This book examines the struggle for equality of citizenship of Indian Muslims in light of the release of the Sachar Committee report of 2006 which sparked widespread awareness of socioeconomic disparity and exclusion of religious minorities in India especially Muslims The contributors are some of the most eminent social scientists in the fields of applied economics politics sociology and demography who work on Indian issues The Indian state and its political infrastructure have been relatively successful thus far in countering the challenges presented by the diversity of its population India therefore has the capacity and the ability to deal with these new challenges given the political and collective will Islamic Studies Series Volume 22

Power-Sharing and Political Stability in Deeply Divided Societies Allison McCulloch,2014-06-05 Nearly all the peace accords signed in the last two decades have included power sharing in one form or another. The notion of both majority and minority segments co-operating for the purposes of political stability has informed both international policy prescriptions for post-conflict zones and home-grown power sharing pacts across the globe. This book examines the effect of power sharing forms of governance in bringing about political stability amid deep divisions. It is the first major comparison of two power sharing designs: consociationalism and centripetalism, and it assesses a number of cases central to the debate, including Nigeria, Sri Lanka, Fiji, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, and Northern Ireland. Drawing on information from a variety of sources such as political party manifestoes and websites, media coverage, think tank reports, and election results, the author reaches significant conclusions about power sharing as an invaluable conflict management device. This text will be of key interest to students and scholars of ethnic conflict management, power sharing, ethnic politics, democracy, and democratization.

Civic Engagement in Food System Governance Alan R. Hunt, 2015-10-05. The local food movement is one of the most active of current civil engagement social movements. This work presents primary evidence from over 900 documents, interviews, and participant observations and provides the first descriptive history of local food movement national policy achievements in the US from 1976 to 2013 and in the UK from 1991 to 2013, together with reviews of both the American and British local food movements. It provides a US-UK comparative context, significantly updating earlier comparisons of American, British, and European farm and rural policies. The comparative perspective shows that over time, more effective strategies for national policy change required social movement building strategies such as collaborative policy coalitions, capacity building for smaller organizations, and policy entrepreneurship for joining together separate rural farming, food, and health interests. In contrast, narrowly defined single-issue campaigns often undermined long-term policy change, even if short-term wins emerged. By profiling interviews of American and English movement leaders, policymakers, and funders, the book demonstrates that democratic participation in food policy is best supported when funders incentivize groups to work together and overcome their differences.

Assessment in Geographical Education: An International Perspective Theresa Bourke, Reece Mills, Rod Lane, 2022-02-27. In recent years, there has been increased attention paid to the importance of assessment in Geographical Education, the chosen subject for this book. Assessment is an important tool for collecting information about student learning and for providing timely data to inform key stakeholders, including students, teachers, parents, and policymakers. To be effective, assessment needs to be valid, reliable, and fair. Validity is about ensuring that we assess what we claim we are assessing. Reliability is about measuring performance and understanding in a consistent way. Without validity and reliability, assessment is unlikely to provide equitable opportunities for students to demonstrate what they know and can do. As geography educators it is therefore important that we identify the core concepts and skills in geography that we want students to master We need a clear understanding of what the progression of learning looks like for each concept and skill so we can develop fit for purpose assessments that track and improve student learning While there is a substantial literature on evidence based assessment in secondary school contexts research exploring best practice assessment in geography is rare This is a concern given the distinctive nature of geography and the important role of assessment in the learning process This scholarly collection seeks to address this issue by connecting research in educational assessment with the domain of geography The chapters are written by leading researchers in Geographical Education from across the globe These chapters provide examples of innovation through the collective voices of geography teacher educator scholars from across Australia USA South Korea Germany Switzerland and Singapore What unifies the work in this book is that each chapter focuses on a key feature of the discipline of geography providing scholarly examples of evidence based practices for assessing student s knowledge and skills

Revisiting Risk-Weighted Assets Vanessa Le Leslé, Ms. Sofiya Avramova, 2012-03-01 In this paper we provide an overview of the concerns surrounding the variations in the calculation of risk weighted assets RWAs across banks and jurisdictions and how this might undermine the Basel III capital adequacy framework We discuss the key drivers behind the differences in these calculations drawing upon a sample of systemically important banks from Europe North America and Asia Pacific We then discuss a range of policy options that could be explored to fix the actual and perceived problems with RWAs and improve the use of risk sensitive capital ratios Governance at the Crossroads Matthew J Hoffmann,2011-03-16 The global response to climate change has reached a critical juncture Since the 1992 signing of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change the nations of the world have attempted to address climate change through large scale multilateral treaty making These efforts have been heroic but disappointing As evidence for the quickening pace of climate change mounts the treaty making process has sputtered and many are now skeptical about the prospect of an effective global response Yet global treaty making is not the only way that climate change can be addressed or indeed is being addressed In the last decade myriad initiatives have emerged across the globe independently from or only loosely connected to the official UN sponsored negotiations and treaties In the face of stalemate in the formal negotiations the world is experimenting with alternate means of responding to climate change Climate Governance at the Crossroads chronicles these innovations how cities provinces and states citizen groups and corporations around the globe are addressing the causes and symptoms of global warming The center of gravity in the global response to climate change is shifting from the multilateral treaty making process to the diverse activities found beyond the negotiating halls These innovations are pushing the envelope of climate action and demonstrating what is possible and they provide hope that the world will respond effectively to the climate crisis In introducing climate governance experiments and examining the development and functioning of this new world of climate policy making this book provides an exciting new perspective on the politics of climate change and the means to understand and influence how the global response to climate change will unfold in the coming years The Political Life of Urban Streetscapes Reuben

Rose-Redwood,Derek Alderman,Maoz Azaryahu,2017-07-06 Streetscapes are part of the taken for granted spaces of everyday urban life yet they are also contested arenas in which struggles over identity memory and place shape the social production of urban space This book examines the role that street naming has played in the political life of urban streetscapes in both historical and contemporary cities The renaming of streets and remaking of urban commemorative landscapes have long been key strategies that different political regimes have employed to legitimize spatial assertions of sovereign authority ideological hegemony and symbolic power Over the past few decades a rich body of critical scholarship has explored the politics of urban toponymy and the present collection brings together the works of geographers anthropologists historians linguists planners and political scientists to examine the power of street naming as an urban place making practice Covering a wide range of case studies from cities in Europe North America Sub Saharan Africa and Asia the contributions to this volume illustrate how the naming of streets has been instrumental to the reshaping of urban spatial imaginaries and the cultural politics of place

New Perspectives on Health, Disability, Welfare and the Labour Market Colin Lindsay, Bent Greve, Ignazio Cabras, Nick Ellison, Stephen Kellett, 2015-11-02 Bringing together researchers from the fields of social policy economics sociology and clinical psychology this book offers new evidence on the inter related problems faced by disability claimants and identifies important lessons for policy Explores how reducing the level of UK benefit claiming among those with health limitations has been a priority for successive governments Argues that current policy fails to reflect the evidence that people on long term disability benefits face a complex combination of barriers to work and social inclusion Demonstrates that there is a need for continuing inter disciplinary research on the nature of the disability benefits problem and the efficacy of current policy solutions and public services
