Many candidates found this Paper approachable and scored well. The average and median marks were similar at around 17, but the distribution profile was wide-ranging.

Some candidates scored very well, but around 30% of candidates attained 13 marks or less.

Some of the questions proved 'easy' to most candidates, with large numbers selecting the correct answer. These questions tested basic areas of the syllabus such as depreciation, control accounts, working capital changes and debtors and creditors collection periods.

Only three questions proved very difficult and there was evidence that many candidates guessed at the answers. In Question 2 many candidates did not realise that only seven months rental was receivable, and opted for a rental of one year. In Question 4 candidates did not realise that the cash discount was to be calculated after deducting the trade discount. And in Question 28, candidates were unclear as to the principles of absorption costing, and in particular, when over and under absorption of overheads arises.

It is not possible for your Examiner to tell from the statistics just how many candidates attempted each question. However it is likely that the lower performing candidates spent too much time on questions involving calculations, and they need to practice more and keep a careful eye on the clock and be prepared to move on if a question proves difficult.
