Undermining Rural Development With Cheap Credit Dale W Adams,2021-11-28 Originally published in 1985 twenty three chapters are brought together in 4 parts dealing with respectively problems in rural finance interest rate policies politics and finance and new directions for rural financial markets In an introduction it is argued that cheap and abundant credit is often regarded as essential for rural development but that actions taken on the basis of this assumption have given disappointing results Low interest policies and the improper use of financial markets are seen as the principal reasons for this It is recommended that higher and more flexible interest rates are allowed and that little or no attention is given to target loans Informal lenders are thought to offer valuable services therefore they should not be discouraged More emphasis should be put on voluntary savings mobilization and access to formal loans by non farm rural firms It is concluded that many traditional agricultural credit programmes are counterproductive and that attractive product and input prices together with higher yields would be more powerful in stimulating agricultural development

Lunsford,1992 Why write together the authors ask They answer that question here in the first book to combine theoretical and historical explorations with actual research on collaborative and group writing Lisa Ede and Andrea Lunsford challenge the assumption that writing is a solitary act That challenge is grounded in their own personal experience as long term collaborators and in their extensive research including a three stage study of collaborative writing supported by the Fund for the Improvement of Post Secondary Education The authors urge a fundamental change in our institutions to accommodate collaboration by radically resituating power in the classroom and by instituting rewards for collaborative work that equal rewards for single authored work They conclude with the injunction Today and in the twenty first century our data suggest writers must be able to work together They must in short be able to collaborate Annual Review in Automatic Programming , Programming Systems and Languages Saul ed Rosen,1969 Data Base Systems Infotech,1975 Information Systems Julius T.
