Mahathir Mohamad's vision of a pride-infused national car company, the state-owned Proton, grew quickly and captured a dominant share of the country's domestic car market, aided in no small measure by generous protective measures and subsidies. However, in the subsequent decades, the car giant lost market share and power due to a variety of challenges, such as non-market performance requirements, less effective protection, and growing competition from a second national car firm and from global car companies. The automaker has had a variety of ownership structures over time but was resolutely kept in domestic hands, public and private. This did increase control over the corporation but did so at the expense of exposure to and adoption of leading-edge technology. This impasse was resolved in 2017 when Proton sold a 49.9 per cent share to the Chinese auto firm Geely. The joint venture has rejuvenated the carmaker, which has begun to reconquer market share through a number of popular SUVs. Despite this, the Malaysian auto market is becoming increasingly competitive. Going forward, Proton will need to begin to export significantly to expose its vehicles to new niche markets, as well as global standards, obtain and retain skilled workers, and continue to rationalize costs in its supply chains and distributorships.

The Asian Marketing Casebook Noel Capon, Wilfried R. Vanhonacker, 1999. Ideal for courses in International Marketing at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Motor Business Japan, 1997. The Japanese motor industry worldwide. Privatization in Malaysia Jeff Tan, 2007-10-02.

In recent years, privatisation has fallen out of favour in many countries because the underlying political factors have not been well understood. This book examines Malaysia's privatisation programme, focusing on how political constraints resulted in the failure of four major privatisations: the national sewerage company IWK, Kuala Lumpur Light Rail Transit (LRT), national airline MAS, and national car company Proton. It considers why developing countries such as Malaysia might want to embark on privatisation, the factors that lead to policy failure, and what is needed to make it work. It shows clearly that political motives driving privatisation often dominate purely economic considerations, and thus it is necessary to analyse privatisation within the specific country context. It argues that failure in the Malaysian case was due to political considerations that compromised institutional design and regulatory enforcement, leading to problems associated with corruption. It concludes that privatisation does not necessarily improve incentives for efficiency or enhance the finance available for capital investment, and that successful privatisation depends on the state's institutional and political capacity to design and manage an appropriate set of subsidies. Overall, this book is a comprehensive examination of privatisation in Malaysia, providing important insights for understanding the political economy of this process in other developing countries.

Technology Transfer and Economic Growth in Sub-Saharan African Countries Nathaniel O. Agola, 2016-03-21. This book provides a pragmatic analytical model grounded on the solid idea that technologies and the accompanying implementation efforts only make sense if they are successfully deployed in markets The analytical model also provides an exhaustive analysis of all critical variables at the global regional and national levels which contribute to failure or success of technology transfer efforts The model is validated by an incisive analysis of technology transfer experiences of Japan Korea Singapore Taiwan province of China and Malaysia While this book finds that these East Asian countries have had both diverging and converging models and experiences with technology transfer the enduring and fundamental aspects of technology transfer in specific industrial sectors and economic growth in these countries is then used to draw lessons for African countries This book therefore is a timely and compelling piece of research work that provides valuable answers to the increasingly urgent question of how African countries can industrialize through technology transfer to meet their economic development and growth ideals Torque ,2006-04 Singapore s best homegrown car magazine with an editorial dream team driving it We fuel the need for speed Brown Sugar Arthur Foo,2006-03 Candy Brown a twenty three year old Swiss girl in search of adventure follows her father on a business trip to Malaysia There she meets a local boy Robert Kok who is two years her junior and ready to take the next important step into adulthood He calls her sugar she calls him a pig She likes shopping he prefers sleeping She loves to read books on Chinese geomancy he would rather read Spider Man comics Despite their contrasting backgrounds their love for each other gradually turns into a bread and butter affair Fueled only by raging hormones Robert is hopelessly inexperienced when it comes to scoring with Candy He has to rely on her to make the first move every time Even though his dignity is undermined Robert never complains because he knows he will always receive his pot of honey at the end of the day But life is never perfect Unknown to Candy and Robert their parents have a dark secret When it is eventually revealed they are in for a real shock Malaysian Maverick B. Wain,2009-11-30 Mahathir Mohamad turned Malaysia into one of the developing world s most successful economies He adopted pragmatic economic policies alongside repressive political measures and showed that Islam was compatible with representative government and modernization He emerged as a Third World champion and Islamic spokesman by standing up to the West
