The Earth's natural resources are finite and easily compromised by contamination from industrial chemicals and byproducts from the degradation of consumer products. The growing field of green and sustainable chemistry seeks to address this through the development of products and processes that are environmentally benign while remaining economically viable. Inorganic chemistry plays a critical role in this endeavor in areas such as resource extraction and isolation, renewable energy, catalytic processes, waste minimization and avoidance, and renewable industrial feedstocks. Sustainable Inorganic Chemistry presents a comprehensive overview of the many new developments taking place in this rapidly expanding field in articles that discuss fundamental concepts alongside cutting edge developments and applications. The volume includes educational reviews from leading scientists on a broad range of topics including inorganic resources, sustainable synthetic methods, alternative reaction conditions, heterogeneous catalysis, photocatalysis, sustainable nanomaterials, renewable and clean fuels, water treatment and remediation, waste valorization, and life cycle sustainability assessment. The content from this book will be added online to the Encyclopedia of Inorganic and Bioinorganic Chemistry.

Streamlined Life-cycle Assessment T. E. Graedel,1998 This book examines the question of what makes one design environmentally preferable to another. Graedel discusses data and analyzes the streamlined life cycle assessment process in the context of the goals of a particular process or product. FEATURES: Discusses environmental objectives as the basis of life cycle assessment; Focuses on streamlined LCAs, a technique common in industry today; Includes unique coverage of the assessment of societal infrastructures; Ch 12 Ends with a hypothetical discussion of what an environmentally perfect product might look like; Includes useful checklists for performing SLCA.

ECSCW 2003 Kari Kuutti, Helena Karsten, G. Fitzpatrick, Paul Dourish, K. Schmidt, 2011-06-27 This volume gathers together the technical papers presented at the 8 European Conference on Computer Supported Cooperative Work (ECSCW) held in Helsinki, Finland. ECSCW is an international forum for multidisciplinary research covering the technical, empirical, and theoretical aspects of collaboration and computer systems. The 20 papers presented here have been selected via a rigorous reviewing process from 110 submissions. Both the number of submissions and the quality of the selected papers are testimony to the diversity and energy of the ECSCW community. We trust that you will find the papers interesting and that they will serve to stimulate further quality work within the community. The technical papers are complemented by a wider set of activities at ECSCW 2003, including tutorials, workshops, demonstrations, videos, posters, and a doctoral colloquium. Together, these provide rich opportunities for discussion, learning, and exploration of the more recent and novel issues in the field. This conference could not have taken place without considerable enthusiasm, support, and participation, not to mention the hard work of a number of people. In particular, we would like to thank the following: The authors representing over 17 countries and 97 institutions who submitted a paper So many submissions of such high quality are the basis of a good conference The members of the program committee who so diligently reviewed and discussed papers Their collective decisions result in a good scientific program and their feedback to authors strengthens the work of the community

The Survival Imperative William E. Burrows, 2007-04-01 Using Space to Save Earth Veteran science journalist William E Burrows offers a bold new mission for the U S space program to protect the Earth from the ever growing number of perils that threaten our way of life and even our very survival We are living through one of the most dangerous times in human history Nuclear chemical and biological weapons technology are proliferating and missile technology is falling into more and more hands Extreme natural disasters like hurricanes floods fires and earthquakes are becoming increasingly costly not only in dollars but in lives as population expands Environmental crises threaten to provoke massive famines and widespread social collapse Asteroids the size of battleships streak within striking distance of the earth every year One strategy offers the best hope of protecting us from all of these dangers a revitalized national space program that coordinates efforts in global defense in environmental protection in communications and in military security The Survival Imperative offers an impassioned argument for this bold initiative To demonstrate the urgency of his cause Burrows presents a vivid scenario an impact by a moderately large asteroid that triggers a series of nuclear exchanges environmental devastation and the slow disintegration of civilization And he examines the existing space program from the heady days of the Moon landing through the political compromises that have characterized the history of NASA in the 35 years following our retreat from the Moon Most of all Burrows warns that the primary obstacle to achieving a true planetary defense program is not financial or scientific but social an unwillingness to acknowledge the urgency of the crisis and to take the political risks needed to address it The question says Burrows is not whether we can do it but whether we will act before it's too late At the Publisher's request this title is being sold without Digital Rights Management Software DRM applied
