An Occupational Information System For The 21st Century The Development Of Onet

An Occupational Information System for the 21st Century Norman G. Peterson, 1999-01-01 The Occupational Titles has been relied on for the description of jobs and workforce development However as global competition and technological change has created a new world of work the Department of Labor realized that a more flexible and precise system for chronicling work related information was needed Thus the O NET or the occupational information network was launched Written by the developers of the O NET system this edited volume describes the research and methodology used in the design and development of this ground breaking system The O NET is intended to provide a framework for describing jobs in terms that are capable of addressing the needs of workers and employers into the 21st Century Instead of relying on rigid task descriptions the O NET uses domains of worker and occupation characteristics such as abilities work styles generalized work activities and work context to describe each job This volume details each of the main domains used by the O NET It outlines how each was quantified and provides statistical analyses about its applications internal relationships and structure The volume also places the O NET system in its historical research context and describes how this innovative new system can support the creation of jobs tailored for the new economy This volume will be invaluable for those needing to familiarize themselves with this powerful new human resource tool It will be of particular interest to industrial organizational psychologists human factors specialists counseling psychologists vocational counselors rehabilitation counselors industrial engineers occupational professionals and labor market analysts

A Database for a Changing Economy National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel to Review the Occupational Information Network (O*NET), 2010-05-11 Information about the characteristics of jobs and the individuals who fill them is valuable for career guidance reemployment counseling workforce development human resource management and other purposes To meet these needs the U S Department of Labor DOL in 1998 launched the Occupational Information Network O NET which consists of a content model a framework for organizing occupational data and an electronic database The O NET content model includes hundreds of descriptors of work and workers organized into domains such as skills knowledge and work activities Data are collected using a classification system that organizes job titles into 1 102 occupations The National Center for O NET Development the O NET Center continually collects data related to these occupations In 2008 DOL requested the National Academies to review O NET and consider its future directions In response the present volume inventories and evaluates the uses of O NET explores the linkage of O NET with the Standard Occupational Classification System and other data sets and identifies ways to improve O NET particularly in the areas of cost effectiveness efficiency and currency
