Results Now Mike Schmoker,2006-06-30 According to author Mike Schmoker there is a yawning gap between the most well known essential practices and the reality of most classrooms This gap persists despite the hard often heroic work done by many teachers and administrators Schmoker believes that teachers and administrators may know what the best practices are but they aren't using them or reinforcing them consistently He asserts that our schools are protected by a buffer a protective barrier that prevents scrutiny of instruction by outsiders The buffer exists within the school as well Teachers often know only what is going on in their classrooms and they may be completely in the dark about what other teachers in the school are doing Even principals says Schmoker don't have a clear view of the daily practices of teaching and learning in their schools Schmoker suggests that we need to get beyond this buffer to confront the truth about what is happening in classrooms and to allow teachers to learn from each other and to be supervised properly He outlines a plan that focuses on the importance of consistent curriculum authentic literacy education and professional learning communities for teachers What will students get out of this new approach Learning for life Schmoker argues passionately that students become learners for life when they have more opportunities to engage in strategic reading writing with explicit guidance and argument and discussion Through strong teamwork true leadership and authentic learning schools and their students can reach new heights Results Now is a rally cry for educators to focus on what counts If they do Schmoker promises the entire school community can count on unprecedented achievements

Writing/Disciplinarity Paul Prior,2013-11-05 Over the past century the explosive growth of scientific technical and cultural disciplines has profoundly affected our daily lives However processes of enculturation in sites such as graduate education that have helped to form these disciplines have received very limited research attention In those sites graduate students write diverse documents including course papers departmental examinations theses and dissertations grant and fellowship applications and disciplinary publications Thus writing is one of the central domains of enculturation an activity through which graduate students and professors display and negotiate disciplinary knowledge genres identities and institutional contexts This volume explores this intersection of writing and disciplinary enculturation through a series of ethnographic case studies These case studies provide the most thorough descriptions available today of the lived experience of graduate seminars combining analysis of classroom talk students texts and professor s written responses institutional contexts students representations of their writing and its contexts and professors representations of their tasks and their students Given the complexities that the ethnographic data displayed the author found that conventional notions of writing as a process of transcription and of disciplines as unified discourse communities were inadequate As such this book also offers an in depth exploration of sociohistoric theory in relation to writing and disciplinary enculturation Specific case studies introduce apply and further elaborate notions of writing as literate activity authorship as mediated by other people and artifacts classroom tasks as speech genres enculturation as the interplay of authoritative and internally persuasive discourses and disciplinarity as a deeply heterogeneous laminated and dialogic process This blend of research and theory should be of interest to scholars and students in such fields as writing studies rhetoric writing across the curriculum applied linguistics English for academic purposes science and technology studies higher education and the ethnography of communication
