Cognition and Motor Processes W. Prinz,A. F. Sanders,2012-12-06 The issue of the relationship between cognition and motor processes can be and has been raised at different levels of analysis At the neurophysiological level it refers to the interactions between afferent and efferent information At the neurological and neuropsychological level it relates to the mutual dependencies between the sensory and the motor part of the brain or more precisely between sensory and motor functions of various parts of the brain In psychology the issue under debate concerns at a molecular level the relationship between perception and movement or at a more molar level the relations between cognition and action For the title of this book we deliberately decided to combine two terms that are taken from two of these levels in order to emphasize both the multilevel structure of the issues involved and the multidisciplinary nature of the following contributions Although the term cognition has been tremendously misused in recent years at least in psychology it is still the only term available to serve as a
