Companies wishing to increase their growth rate occasionally employed the method of franchising, which provides a new owner with a permit to use their business identity and in return they purchase products exclusively from the company. However, today most companies aim to minimise use of this method and often prefer expansion of the companies' own branches. Companies that have previously used franchising have learnt the necessity of monitoring the business operation of the franchised branch. Inadequate attention to the monitoring of franchisees on the part of the companies was typically the cause of sundry problems. Difficulties arose from franchisees and companies disagreeing on business policies such as customer care, service delivery efficiency and quality of human interaction.

3. Which one of the following reflects a problem related to lack of monitoring?

- Deterioration in the quality of products [x]
- Poor customer service [x]
- Supply exceeding demand [x]
- Lack of delivery services [x]
