The Theory and Practice of Grading Writing Frances Zak,Christopher C. Weaver,1998-02-05 CHOICE 1998 Outstanding Academic Books Grading is one of the thorniest issues writing teachers must deal with yet surprisingly little has been written on this topic As writing teachers move increasingly toward practices that focus on writing as a process they face a growing need to reconsider their systems of grading to determine whether or not these systems support their pedagogies The authors interrogate the grading of individual papers as well as portfolios and the assigning of end of term grades This collection explores the issues and problems that have emerged as conventional grading practices have lagged behind and been challenged by new theories of language While the book will be of interest to theorists Zak and Weaver have also made the book relevant and useful to teachers whose primary interest is the practical consequences of theory in their classrooms Where theoretical discussion takes place the language is clear and accessible Many of the authors write directly from personal experience telling stories of the classroom or writing of new techniques and approaches they have tried They speak with the voices of teachers and the tone and content of their words convey a sense of the immediacy of the topic

Language Development In Exceptional Circumstances Dorothy Bishop, K. Mogford, 2013-04-15 Ever since attempts were made to describe and explain normal language development references to exceptional circumstances have been made Variations in the conditions under which language is acquired can be regarded as natural experiments which would not be feasible or ethical under normal circumstances This can throw light on such questions as What language input is necessary for the child to learn language What is the relationship between cognition and language How independent are different components of language function Are there critical periods for language development Can we specify necessary and sufficient conditions for language impairment This book covers a range of exceptional circumstances including extreme deprivation twinship visual and auditory impairments autism and focal brain damage Written in a jargon free style and including a glossary of linguistic and medical terminology the book assumes little specialist knowledge This text is suitable for both students and practitioners in the fields of psycholinguistics developmental and educational psychology speech pathology paediatrics and special education
