MARTHA Paul Penfield,1971 MARTHA is a set of general purpose programs for analyzing linear electrical networks available to users with access to APL time sharing systems The programs analyze as a function of frequency most linear transmission type networks with an input and an output This includes most filters amplifiers microwave networks and feedback systems even if such circuits are relatively complicated with multiple feedback paths and branches The programs cannot handle some complicated interconnections of components and are not set up to analyze nonlinear or time varying networks The topology of the network is described using wiring operators The elements available include lumped and distributed active and passive reciprocal and nonreciprocal elements The possible output includes tow port parameters impedance admittance hybrid scattering and ABCD matrices as well as voltage gain insertion gain transducer gain etc These their real or imaginary parts or magnitude or phase may be printed or plotted as functions of frequency or of each other More than one network can be analyzed simultaneously MARTHA is not inherently better at one frequency range than another except perhaps in its repertoire of elements and response functions MARTHA includes besides R L and C sixteen controlled sources operational amplifiers mutual inductance three transistor models and the possibility of easily creating others ideal transformers several composite pi and tee structures and a few exotic elements such as gyrators For high frequency applications MARTHA has several microwave elements including TEM transmission lines waveguides attenuators and isolators The NASTRAN Theoretical Manual ,1981 PACAD Ramin Fardi,Keyvan Haghighat,Afshin

Fardi,2000-01-01 This software is an integration of tools and simulators designed to help the user solve the most common feedforward predistorted amplifier design equations including calculating gain and loop balance optimum coupling ratios and more It includes the tools needed everyday such as a microstrip calculator and parallel coupler designer to relieve the user of lengthy calculations and help predict the performance of a complex amplifier before all the blocks are together PACAD also features a nonlinearity simulator that simulates the intermodulation characteristics of an amplifier given the amplifier s compression gain and phase curves This tool helps calculate the required characteristics of an optimum predistortion block and simulates the combination of predistortion and amplifier in terms of intermodulation products taking the guesswork out of predistortion block design There is an accompanying user s manual in this package *Rotorcraft Linear Simulation Model.
