Imperfect Histories Ann Rigney, 2018-09-05 Imperfect Histories puts imperfection at the heart of a theory of historical representation Ann Rigney shows how historical writing involves dealing with intractable subjects that resist our efforts to know and to shape them Those who write history she says engage in an ongoing struggle to match up what they find relevant in the past with the information and interpretive models at their disposal Chronic dissatisfaction is at the heart of historical practice This is especially evident in the various attempts made over the last two centuries to write an alternative history of everyday experience Focusing on historical writing in the last decades of the eighteenth century and the first half of the nineteenth Rigney analyzes a wide range of works by Walter Scott Jules Michelet Augustin Thierry and Thomas Carlyle She shows how the attempt to write an alternative history brought historical writing into a close yet fraught relationship with literature The result is a new account of that relationship as it took shape in the romantic period and as it continues to influence contemporary practices

Explorations in Poetics Benjamin Harshav, 2007 This collection of essays originally published at different times presents a coherent systematic and comprehensive theory of the work of literature and its major aspects The approach which may be called Constructive Poetics does not assume that a work of literature is a text with fixed structures and meanings but a text that invites the reader to evoke or project a network of interrelated constructs complementary or contradictory as they may be The work of literature is not just a narrative as studies in narratology assume but a text that projects a fictional world or an Internal Field of Reference Meanings in a text are presented through the evocation of frames of reference scenes characters ideas etc Language in literature is double directed it relates the Internal Field to External Fields and vice versa The essays explore the problems of fictionality presentation and representation metaphor as interaction between several frames of reference the theory of Integrational Semantics in literary and other texts the meaning of sound patterns in poetry and the question of literariness This theory and its specific aspects were developed by the author in Israel in the 1960s and 1970s and lay at the foundations of the Tel Aviv School of Poetics Revived now it resonates with the current mood in literary criticism

The Eunuchs in the Ming Dynasty Shih-shan Henry Tsai, 1996-01-01 This book is the first on Chinese eunuchs in English and presents a comprehensive picture of the role that they played in the Ming dynasty 1368 1644 Extracted from a wide range of primary and secondary source material the author provides significant and interesting information about court politics espionage and internal security military and foreign affairs tax and tribute collection the operation of imperial monopolies judiciary review the layout of the palace complex the Grand Canal and much more The eunuchs are shown to be not just a minor adjunct to a government of civil servants and military officers but a fully developed third branch of the Ming administration that participated in all of the most essential matters of the dynasty The veil of condemnation and jealousy imposed on eunuchs by the compilers of official history is pulled away to reveal a richly textured tapestry Eunuchs are portrayed in a balanced manner that gives due consideration to able and faithful service along with the inept the lurid and the iniquitous

genre of documentary fiction novels that are continually near the borderline between factual and fictive discourse She links the development of the genre over three centuries to the evolution of capitalism but her analyses of literary texts depart significantly from those of most current Marxist critics Foley maintains that Marxist theory has yet to produce a satisfactory theory of mimesis or of the development of genres and she addresses such key issues as the problem of reference and the nature of generic distinctions Among the authors whom Foley treats are Defoe Scott George Eliot Joyce Isherwood Dos Passos William Wells Brown Ishmael Reed and Ernest Gaines

The American Historical Romance George Dekker, 1990-05-03 This book traces the tradition of American historical fiction from its origins in the early nineteenth century to the eve of World War II It examines the historical novel's connections with Enlightenment and Romantic theories of history with the rise of literary regionalism with the ambitions of Romantic writers to revive the epic and romance with changing conceptions of gender roles and with the authors' troubled responses to the great revolutionary and imperialistic conflicts of the modern era However though inevitably much concerned with the theory of genre and with the specific contents of the genre of historical romance Professor Dekker devotes most of his book to new readings of major texts by James Fenimore Cooper Nathaniel Hawthorne Herman Melville Mark Twain Allen Tate Edith Wharton Willa Cather and William Faulkner as well as to the Briton whose name was synonymous with the genre for most of the nineteenth century Sir Walter Scott The American Historical Romance is the richest most fully meditated and most rewarding yet written by this author It is the most important book on the relations of British and American fiction to come out for many years No devotee of the American novel will ignore it The Times Literary Supplement

Packaging Life Pramod K Nayar, 2009-11-20 This book explores the cultural politics of four aspects of everyday life health comfort risk and mobility as manifest in public culture It examines the commodification of these aspects arguing that our experience and perception are mediated by discourses circulating in the mass media The book is an essential reading for those who want to understand modern urban cultural rhetorics Scholars and practitioners working in the fields of media and communication consumer behaviour studies and cultural studies will find it highly engaging as well as provocative

Chinese Eunuchs Taisuke Mitamura, 1992 This book traces the history of eunuchism from its very early days until November 5 1924 when the system was finally banned and hundreds of eunuchs crying pitifully in high pitched feminine voices were expelled from Tzu Chin Palace thus ending a system that had endured over 2 000 years and through 25 dynasties

The Character of Truth Naomi Jacobs, 1990 Can the novel survive in an age when tales of historical figures and contemporary personalities dominate the reading lists of the book buying public Naomi Jacobs addresses this question in a study of writers such as William Styron E L Doctorow and Robert Coover who challenge the dominance of nonfiction by populating their fictions with real people living and dead Jacobs explores the genesis varieties and implications of this trend in a prose as lively as that of the writers she critiques Using as a case study Robert Coover's portrait of Richard Nixon in The Public Burning Jacobs addresses the important legal and ethical questions raised by this trend and applies contemporary libel law to the fictionalization of living people such as Richard Nixon She closes her study by speculating on the future of this device and of the novel Beyond the Great Story Robert F. Berkhofer,1995 What legitimate form can history take when faced by the severe challenges issued in recent years by literary rhetorical multiculturalist and feminist theories That is the question considered in this pathbreaking book Robert Berkhofer addresses the essential practical concern of contemporary historians Models and Metaphors Max Black,2019-06-30 Although the range is wide philosophy of language logic philosophy of science in this collection of essays there is a certain unity of treatment arising from the author s steady interest in using linguistic analysis to cast some new light on old problems such as the nature of logic causation and induction
