General Chemistry (International 10th Edition). Darrell Ebbin,2013

Multiple Representations in Chemical Education John K. Gilbert, David Treagust, 2009-02-28 Chemistry seeks to provide qualitative and quantitative explanations for the observed behaviour of elements and their compounds. Doing so involves making use of three types of representation: the macro, the empirical properties of substances, the sub-micro, the natures of the entities giving rise to those properties, and the symbolic, the number of entities involved in any changes that take place. Although understanding this triplet relationship is a key aspect of chemical education, there is considerable evidence that students find great difficulty in achieving mastery of the ideas involved. In bringing together the work of leading chemistry educators who are researching the triplet relationship at the secondary and university levels, the book discusses the learning involved, the problems that students encounter, and successful approaches to teaching. Based on the reported research, the editors argue for a coherent model for understanding the triplet relationship in chemical education.

Daniel Deronda George Eliot, 1876

Essential Chemistry Raymond Chang, 2000 Aimed at the one-year general chemistry course, this text offers a shorter, more compact presentation of topics at the same depth and with the same rigor as other traditional mainstream texts. It includes only the core topics necessary for a good foundation in general chemistry but without sacrificing clarity and comprehension.

Computational Chemistry Using the PC Donald Rogers, 1994 An introduction to computational chemistry, molecular orbital calculations, and molecular mechanics. This second edition takes in recent developments in hardware and software. The book includes a disk with about 50 complete projects and selected output files suitable for self-study.
