Wearable Robots José L. Pons, 2008-04-15 A wearable robot is a mechatronic system that is designed around the shape and function of the human body with segments and joints corresponding to those of the person it is externally coupled with Teleoperation and power amplification were the first applications but after recent technological advances the range of application fields has widened Increasing recognition from the scientific community means that this technology is now employed in telemanipulation man amplification neuromotor control research and rehabilitation and to assist with impaired human motor control Logical in structure and original in its global orientation this volume gives a full overview of wearable robotics providing the reader with a complete understanding of the key applications and technologies suitable for its development The main topics are demonstrated through two detailed case studies one on a lower limb active orthosis for a human leg and one on a wearable robot that suppresses upper limb tremor These examples highlight the difficulties and potentialities in this area of technology illustrating how design decisions should be made based on these As well as discussing the cognitive interaction between human and robot this comprehensive text also covers the mechanics of the wearable robot and its biomechanical interaction with the user including state of the art technologies that enable sensory and motor interaction between human biological and wearable artificial mechatronic systems the basis for bioinspiration and biomimeticism general rules for the development of biologically inspired designs and how these could serve recursively as biological models to explain biological systems the study on the development of networks for wearable robotics Wearable Robotics Biomechatronic Exoskeletons will appeal to lecturers senior undergraduate students postgraduates and other researchers of medical electrical and bio engineering who are interested in the area of assistive robotics Active system developers in this sector of the engineering industry will also find it an informative and welcome resource

The Global Smartphone Daniel Miller ,Laila Abed Rabho ,Patrick Awondo , Maya de Vries,Marília Duque,Pauline Garvey, Laura Haapio-Kirk,Charlotte Hawkins,Alfonso Otaegui ,Shireen Walton,Xinyuan Wang,2021-05-06 The smartphone is often literally right in front of our nose so you would think we would know what it is But do we To find out 11 anthropologists each spent 16 months living in communities in Africa Asia Europe and South America focusing on the take up of smartphones by older people Their research reveals that smartphones are technology for everyone not just for the young The Global Smartphone presents a series of original perspectives deriving from this global and comparative research project Smartphones have become as much a place within which we live as a device we use to provide perpetual opportunism as they are always with us The authors show how the smartphone is more than an app device and explore differences between what people say about smartphones and how they use them The smartphone is unprecedented in the degree to which we can transform it As a result it quickly assimilates personal values In order to comprehend it we must take into consideration a range of national and cultural nuances such as visual communication in China and Japan mobile money in Cameroon and Uganda and access to health information in Chile and Ireland all alongside diverse trajectories of ageing in Al Quds Brazil and Italy Only then can we know what a smartphone is and understand its consequences for people s lives around the world
