

Capitals are made with hand movement. Be sure you slide your hand on the paper.

It is very important that your forearm rest flat on the desk top. The only motion that these letters depend on originates there.

The hairline of the A can be made as an upstroke or a downstroke. In the first example, the loop must be carefully drawn and the shade added later. The loop itself may be made in two strokes, each starting in the center.

The loop that begins the C can be made left to right or, starting near the top, from right to left.

Before you attempt these capitals with a pen, draw them very carefully with a pencil in order to know exactly where each stroke goes.

The first example of capital D is, without a doubt, the most difficult letter in the Round hand alphabet. The long hairline, curving upward and to the left, demands exact control. This form is also the most appropriate for formal writing and, for this reason, must be mastered. With good control, it can be made over-ripe, but it will be found easier to lift the pen after the compound curve and start the hairline with a relaxed hand.

E will present no problems. Turn the paper for F's top.

and are interwoven and knotted together to produce a complete letter. These capital letters were used as a single initial letter, a versal or multiple letters. The oldest known cadell found was in the illuminated prayer book the Tres Riches Heures de Duc de Berry made by the Limbourg Brothers. In 1409 Jean Flamel, the Duc's Secretary, inscribed the title page of the book with cadells. He incorporated the cadells into the letter's stems, producing an overall texture to the whole page. Since there is no standard exemplar for this lettering style, this book covers many ways a calligrapher can create these beautiful capitals, by either following the historical version or creating their own style.

Delight in One Thousand Characters Susan O'Leary, 2022-09-13. A beautifully curated presentation of the Thousand Character Essay, a masterpiece of Chinese calligraphy that has served as the art form's classic manual for over 1,400 years. Sung to infants as a lullaby, used to teach reading and writing, and employed as library index codes, the Thousand Character Essay is China's most widely used and beloved calligraphy textbook. Composed by the literary giant Zhou Xingsi and handwritten by sixth-century Buddhist monk Zhiyong, this masterful work has endured for centuries as the standard guide for brush writing, both in formal and cursive scripts. Delight in One Thousand Characters brings this sublime body of art as text to English-speaking readers through its translation and explanation by calligraphers and artists Kazuaki Tanahashi and Susan O'Leary. Preserving the renowned beauty of monk Zhiyong's only extant handwriting, the book visually depicts the traditional script through extensive imagery, including a full one-hundred-strip edition of Zhiyong's calligraphy. All images also have corresponding commentary explaining the meaning of each character. Essays and appendices by Tanahashi and O'Leary detail the fascinating history, geographic range, and aesthetic nuance of the essay and of Zhiyong's rendering, essential material to be familiar with the history, thought, literature, and art of East Asian civilization. For calligraphers, Delight in One Thousand Characters can serve as an advanced primer for practicing both formal and cursive Chinese calligraphy.
