Transforming Family Jocelyn Frelier,2022-11 One of the lasting legacies of colonialism is the assumption that families should conform to a kinship arrangement built on normative nuclear individuality based models An alternate understanding of familial aspiration is one cultivated across national borders and cultures and beyond the constraints of diasporas This alternate understanding which imagines a category of trans families relies on decolonial and queer intellectual thought to mobilize or transform power across borders In Transforming Family Jocelyn Frelier examines a selection of novels penned by francophone authors in France Morocco and Algeria including Azouz Begag Nina Bouraoui Fouad Laroui Le la Sebbar Le la Slimani and Abdellah Ta a Each novel contributes a unique argument about this alternate understanding of family questioning how family relates to race gender class embodiment and intersectionality Arguing that trans families are always already queer Frelier opens up new spaces of agency for both family units and individuals who seek representation and fulfilling futures The novels analyzed in Transforming Family as well as the families they depict resist classification and delink the legacies of colonialism from contemporary modes of being As a result these novels create trans identities for their protagonists and contribute to a scholarly understanding of the becoming trans of cultural production As international political debates related to migration the family unit and the global migrant crisis surge Frelier destabilizes governmental criteria for the regrouping of families by turning to a set of definitions found in the cultural production of members of the francophone North African diaspora

Not Like a Native Speaker Rey Chow,2014-09-23 Although the era of European colonialism has long passed misgivings about the inequality of the encounters between European and non European languages persist in many parts of the postcolonial world This unfinished state of affairs this lingering historical experience of being caught among unequal languages is the subject of Rey Chow's book A diverse group of personae never before assembled in a similar manner make their appearances in the various chapters the young mulatto happening upon a photograph about skin color in a popular magazine the man from Martinique hearing himself named Negro in public in France call center agents in India trained to Americanize their accents while speaking with customers the Algerian Jewish philosopher reflecting on his relation to the French language African intellectuals debating the pros and cons of using English for purposes of creative writing the translator acting by turns as a traitor and as a mourner in the course of cross cultural exchange Cantonese speaking writers of Chinese contemplating the politics of food consumption radio drama workers straddling the forms of traditional storytelling and mediatized sound broadcast In these riveting scenes of speaking and writing imbricated with race pigmentation and class demarcations Chow suggests postcolonial languaging becomes de facto an order of biopolitics The native speaker the fulcrum figure often accorded a transcendent status is realigned here as the repository of illusory linguistic origins and unities By inserting British and post British Hong Kong the city where she grew up into the languaging controversies that tend to be pursued in Francophone and occasionally Anglophone deliberations and by sketching the fraught situations faced by those coping with the specifics of using Chinese while negotiating with English Chow not only redefines the geopolitical boundaries of postcolonial inquiry but also demonstrates how such inquiry must articulate historical experience to the habits practices affects and imaginaries based in sounds and scripts Natural Histories Guadalupe Nettel,2014-06-10 Siamese fighting fish cockroaches cats a snake and a strange fungus all serve here as mirrors that reflect the unconfessable aspects of human nature buried within us The traits and fates of these animals illuminate such deeply natural human experiences as the cruelty born of cohabitation the desire to reproduce and the impulse not to and the inexplicable connection that can bind eerily two beings together Each Nettel tale creates with tightly wound narrative tension a space wherein her characters feel excruciatingly human exploring how the wounds we incur in life manifest themselves within us clandestinely irrevocably both unseen and overtly In a precise writing style that is both subtle and spellbinding Nettel renders the ordinary unsettling and the grotesque exquisite Natural Histories is the winner of the 3rd Ribera del Duero International Award for Short Narratives an important Spanish literature prize
