Film Theory An Introduction Through The Senses Thomas Elsaesser

Film Theory Thomas Elsaesser, Malte Hagener, 2015-03-12 What is the relationship between cinema and spectator This is the key question for film theory and one that Thomas Elsaesser and Malte Hagener put at the center of their insightful and engaging book now revised from its popular first edition Every kind of cinema and every film theory first imagines an ideal spectator and then maps certain dynamic interactions between the screen and the spectator's mind body and senses Using seven distinctive configurations of spectator and screen that move progressively from exterior to interior relationships the authors retrace the most important stages of film theory from its beginnings to the present from neo realist and modernist theories to psychoanalytic apparatus phenomenological and cognitivist theories and including recent cross overs with philosophy and neurology This new and updated edition of Film Theory An Introduction through the Senses has been extensively revised and rewritten throughout incorporating discussion of contemporary films like Her and Gravity and including a greatly expanded final chapter which brings film theory fully into the digital age

Film Theory Thomas Elsaesser, Malte Hagener, 2009-12-16 What is the relationship between cinema and spectator That is the central question for film theory and renowned film scholars Thomas Elsaesser and Malte Hagener use this question to guide students through all of the major film theories from the classical period to today in this insightful engaging book Every kind of cinema and film theory imagines an ideal spectator and then imagines a certain relationship between the mind and body of that spectator and the screen Using seven distinctive configurations of spectator and screen that move progressively from exterior to interior relationships the authors retrace the most important stages of film theory from 1945 to the present from neo realist and modernist theories to psychoanalytic apparatus phenomenological and cognitivist theories

Film History Thomas Elsaesser, Michael Wedel, 2013-04-12 Too often film and the cinema have been treated primarily as a visual medium with the consequence that spectatorship has come to be regarded as a matter of the eye alone In Film History An Introduction through the Senses Thomas Elsaesser and Michael Wedel put the other senses at the centre of the cinematic experience charting the dynamics along which the cinema has configured positioned and rearticulated itself over time within the larger cultural force field of media technologies the body and the senses Much like Film Theory An Introduction through the Senses each chapter in this new book begins by identifying the major terms of a particular period including early cinema classical cinema modern art cinema post classical cinema avant garde cinema world cinema and digital cinema and closely analyzing of one or more of the era's key films Using major twentieth century media theorists the authors then examine the way in which media technologies have affected altered traversed or perverted the body and the senses For example they consider the cinema as a site for the training of the body and the mass production of the senses the cinema as the exploitation of the body and the commodification of the senses the cinema as a public space to adapt the body and educate the senses to the demands of society By broadening our understanding of spectatorship Elsaesser and Wedel are able to provide an account of film history that more easily accommodates the new forms that the cinematic experience is taking in the 21st century The advanced undergraduate will find this book to be an excellent introduction to both major media theorists like McLuhan and Kracauer and also film history more generally

Film Theory Robert Stam, 2017-11-20 This book is a lively and provoking introduction to film theory. It is suitable for students from any discipline but is particularly aimed at students studying film and literature as it examines issues common to both subjects such as realism, illusionism, narration, point of view, style, semiotics, psychoanalysis, and multiculturalism. It also includes coverage of theorists common to both Barthes, Lacan, and Bakhtin among others. Robert Stam, renowned for his clarity of writing, will also include studies of cinema specialists providing readers with a depth of reference not generally available outside the field of film studies itself. Other material covered includes film adaptations of works of literature and analogies between literary and film criticism.

European Cinema and Continental Philosophy Thomas Elsaesser, 2019-01-01 This groundbreaking volume for the Thinking Cinema series focuses on the extent to which contemporary cinema contributes to political and philosophical thinking about the future of Europe's core Enlightenment values. In light of the challenges of globalization, multi-cultural communities, and post-nation-state democracy, the book interrogates the borders of ethics and politics and roots itself in debates about post-secular, post-Enlightenment philosophy. By defining a cinema that knows that it is no longer a competitor to Hollywood, i.e. the classic self/other construction, Elsaesser also thinks past the kind of self-exoticism or auto-ethnography that is the perpetual temptation of such a co-produced, multi-platform national cinema as world cinema. Discussing key filmmakers and philosophers like Claire Denis and Jean-Luc Nancy, Aki Kaurismäki, abjection, and Julia Kristeva, Michael Haneke, the paradoxes of Christianity, and Slavoj Žižek, Fatih Akin, Alain Badiou, and Jacques Rancière, Elsaesser is able to approach European cinema and assess its key questions within a global context. His combination of political and philosophical thinking will surely ground the debate in film philosophy for years to come.

The Persistence of Hollywood Thomas Elsaesser, 2012-05-22 While Hollywood's success, its persistence has remained constant for almost one hundred years, the study of its success has undergone significant expansion and transformation. Since the 1960s, Thomas Elsaesser's research has spearheaded the study of Hollywood, beginning with his classic essays on auteurism and cinephilia, focused around a director's themes and style, up to his analysis of the corporate authorship of contemporary director James Cameron. In between, he has helped to transform film studies by incorporating questions of narrative, genre, desire, ideology, and more recently, Hollywood's economic, technological infrastructure and its place within global capitalism. The Persistence of Hollywood brings together Elsaesser's key writings about Hollywood filmmaking. It includes his detailed studies of individual directors, including Minnelli, Fuller, Ray, Hitchcock, Lang, Altman, Kubrick, Coppola, and Cameron, as well as essays charting the shifts from classic to corporate Hollywood by way of the New Hollywood and the resurgence of the blockbuster. The book also presents a history of the different critical theoretical paradigms central to film studies in its analysis of Hollywood from auteurism and cinephilia to textual analysis, Marxism, psychoanalysis, and post-industrial analysis.

Mind the Screen Jaap Kooijman, Patricia Pisters, Wanda Strauven, 2008 Mind the Screen pays tribute to the work of the pioneering European film scholar Thomas Elsaesser, author of several volumes on media studies and cinema culture. Covering a full scope of issues arising from the author's work from melodrama and mediated memory to avant-garde practices, media archaeology, and the audiovisual archive, this collection elaborates and expands on Elsaesser's original ideas along the topical lines of cinephilia, the historical imaginary, the contemporary European cinematic experience, YouTube, and images of terrorism and double occupancy among other topics. Contributions from well-known artists and scholars such as Mieke Bal and Warren Buckland explore a range of media concepts and provide a mirror for the multi-faceted types of screens active in Elsaesser's work, including the television set, video installation, the digital interface, the mobile phone display, and of course, the hallowed silver screen of our contemporary film culture.

Film History as Media Archaeology Thomas Elsaesser, 2019-02-05 Since cinema has entered the digital era its very nature has come under renewed scrutiny Countering the death of cinema debate Film History as Media Archaeology presents a robust argument for the cinema s current status as a new epistemological object of interest to philosophers while also examining the presence of moving images in the museum and art spaces as a challenge for art history The current study is the fruit of some twenty years of research and writing at the interface of film history media theory and media archaeology by one of the acknowledged pioneers of the new film history and media archaeology It joins the efforts of other media scholars to locate cinema s historical emergence and subsequent transformations within the broader field of media change and interaction as we experience them today

Spectral Theory and Quantum Mechanics Valter Moretti, 2018-01-30 This book discusses the mathematical foundations of quantum theories It offers an introductory text on linear functional analysis with a focus on Hilbert spaces highlighting the spectral theory features that are relevant in physics After exploring physical phenomenology it then turns its attention to the formal and logical aspects of the theory Further this Second Edition collects in one volume a number of useful rigorous results on the mathematical structure of quantum mechanics focusing in particular on von Neumann algebras Superselection rules the various notions of Quantum Symmetry and Symmetry Groups and including a number of fundamental results on the algebraic formulation of quantum theories Intended for Master s and PhD students both in physics and mathematics the material is designed to be self contained it includes a summary of point set topology and abstract measure theory together with an appendix on differential geometry The book also benefits established researchers by organizing and presenting the profusion of advanced material disseminated in the literature Most chapters are accompanied by exercises many of which are solved explicitly

The Mind-Game Film Thomas Elsaesser, 2021-03-28 This book represents the culmination of Thomas Elsaesser s intense and passionate thinking about the Hollywood mind game film from the previous two decades In order to answer what the mind game film is why they exist and how they function Elsaesser maps the industrial institutional challenges and constraints facing Hollywood and the broader philosophic horizon within which American cinema thrives today He demonstrates how the Persistence of Hollywood continues as it has adapted to include new twists and turns as well as revisions of past concerns as film moves through the 21st century Through examples such as Minority Report Mulholland Drive Source Code and Back to the Future Elsaesser explores how mind game films challenge us and play games with our perception of reality creating skepticism and self doubt He also highlights the mind game film s tendency to intervene in a complex fashion in the political moment by questioning the dominant power s intent to program both body and mind alike Prescient and compelling The Mind Game Film will appeal to students scholars and enthusiasts of media studies film studies philosophy and politics

Critical Visions in Film Theory Timothy Corrigan, Patricia White, Meta Mazaj, 2010-12-06 Critical Visions in Film Theory is a new book for a new generation embracing groundbreaking approaches in the field without ignoring the history of classical film theory. The study of film theory has changed dramatically over the past 30 years with innovative ways of looking at classic debates in areas like film form, genre, and authorship, as well as exciting new conversations on such topics as race, gender, and sexuality, and new media. Until now, no film theory anthology has stepped forward to represent this broader, more inclusive perspective. Critical Visions also provides the best guidance for students, giving them the context and the tools they need to critically engage with theory and apply it to their film experiences.

Transcendental Style in Film Paul Schrader, 2018-05-18 With a new introduction, acclaimed director and screenwriter Paul Schrader revisits and updates his contemplation of slow cinema over the past fifty years. Unlike the style of psychological realism which dominates film, the transcendental style expresses a spiritual state by means of austere camerawork, acting devoid of self-consciousness, and editing that avoids editorial comment. This seminal text analyzes the film style of three great directors: Yasujiro Ozu, Robert Bresson, and Carl Dreyer, and posits a common dramatic language used by these artists from divergent cultures. The new edition updates Schrader's theoretical framework and extends his theory to the works of Andrei Tarkovsky (Russia), Bela Tarr (Hungary), Theo Angelopoulos (Greece), and Nuri Bilge Ceylan (Turkey), among others. This key work by one of our most searching directors and writers is widely cited and used in film and art classes. With evocative prose and nimble associations, Schrader consistently urges readers and viewers alike to keep exploring the world of the art film.

German Cinema - Terror and Trauma Thomas Elsaesser, 2013-10-30 In German Cinema: Terror and Trauma Since 1945, Thomas Elsaesser reevaluates the meaning of the Holocaust for postwar German films and culture while offering a reconsideration of trauma theory. Today, Elsaesser argues that Germany's attempts at mastering the past can be seen as both a failure and an achievement, making it appropriate to speak of an ongoing guilt management that includes not only Germany but Europe as a whole. In a series of case studies which consider the work of Konrad Wolf, Alexander Kluge, Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Herbert Achterbusch, and Harun Farocki, as well as films made in the new century, Elsaesser tracks the different ways the Holocaust is present in German cinema from the 1950s onwards, even when it is absent or referenced in oblique and hyperbolic ways. Its most emphatically absent presence might turn out to be the compulsive afterlife of the Red Army Faction, whose acts of terror in the 1970s were a response to, as well as a reminder of, Nazism's hold on the national imaginary. Since the end of the Cold War and 9/11, the terms of the debate around terror and trauma have shifted, also in Germany, where generational memory now distributes the roles of historical agency and accountability differently. Against the background of universalized victimhood, a cinema of commemoration has, if anything, confirmed the violence that the past continues to exert on the present in the form of missed encounters, retroactive incidents, unintended slippages, and uncanny parallels, which Elsaesser, reviving the full meaning of Freud's Fehlleistung, calls the parapractic performativity of cultural memory.

Philosophy of Film and Motion Pictures Noël Carroll, Jinhee Choi, 2009-02-09 Designed for classroom use, this authoritative anthology presents key selections from the best contemporary work in philosophy of film. The featured essays have been specially chosen for their clarity, philosophical depth, and consonance with the current movement towards cognitive film theory. Eight sections with introductions cover topics such as the nature of film, film as art, documentary cinema, narration and emotion in film, film criticism, and film's relation to knowledge and morality. Issues addressed include the objectivity of documentary films, fear of movie monsters, and moral questions surrounding the viewing of pornography. Replete with examples and discussion of moving pictures throughout.

Melodrama and Trauma Thomas Elsaesser, 2017-03 The woman's picture, the male trauma narrative, and mind game films: three ways that American cinema tests the limits of what victims can suffer, what the body can bear, and what the mind can understand. Usually considered both marginal and excessive, these genres, modes, or tendencies in contemporary Hollywood have more in common than might at first appear. They tell us much about the way America engages in dialogue with its own divided nature and nation, demonstrated across its most cherished and characteristic art forms: the movies.

Harun Farocki Thomas Elsaesser, 2004 Filmmaker, film essayist, installation artist, writer: the Berlin artist Harun Farocki has devoted his life to the power of images. Over the thirty-plus years of his career, Farocki has explored not the images of life but rather the life of images that surrounds us in newspapers, cinema, books, television, and advertising. Harun Farocki examines from different critical perspectives his vast oeuvre, which includes three feature films, critical media pieces, children's television features, learning films in the tradition of Brecht, and installation pieces. Interviews, a selection of Farocki's own writings, and an annotated filmography complete a valuable biography of this pioneering artist and his legendary career.

Carnal Thoughts Vivian Sobchack, 2004-11-01 In these innovative essays, Vivian Sobchack considers the key role our bodies play in making sense of today's image-saturated culture. Emphasizing our corporeal rather than our intellectual engagements with film and other media, Carnal Thoughts shows how our experience always emerges through our senses and how our bodies are not just visible objects but also sense-making visual subjects. Sobchack draws on both phenomenological philosophy and a broad range of popular sources to explore bodily experience in contemporary moving-image culture. She examines how, through the conflation of cinema and surgery, we've all had our eyes done: why we are moved by the movies and the different ways in which we inhabit photographic, cinematic, and electronic space. Carnal Thoughts provides a lively and engaging challenge to the mind/body split by demonstrating that the process of making sense requires an irreducible collaboration between our thoughts and our senses.

David Lynch Swerves Martha P. Nochimson, 2013-04-15 Beginning with Lost Highway director David Lynch swerved in a new direction one in which very disorienting images of the physical world take center stage in his films Seeking to understand this unusual emphasis in his work noted Lynch scholar Martha Nochimson engaged Lynch in a long conversation of unprecedented openness during which he shared his vision of the physical world as an uncertain place that masks important universal realities He described how he derives this vision from the Holy Vedas of the Hindu religion as well as from his layman's fascination with modern physics With this deep insight Nochimson forges a startlingly original template for analyzing Lynch's later films the seemingly unlikely combination of the spiritual landscape envisioned in the Holy Vedas and the material landscape evoked by quantum mechanics and relativity In David Lynch Swerves Nochimson navigates the complexities of Lost Highway The Straight Story Mulholland Drive and Inland Empire with uncanny skill shedding light on the beauty of their organic compositions their thematic critiques of the immense dangers of modern materialism and their hopeful conceptions of human potential She concludes with excerpts from the wide ranging interview in which Lynch discussed his vision with her as well as an interview with Columbia University physicist David Albert who was one of Nochimson's principal tutors in the discipline of quantum physics
