Motivated Money Peter Thornhill,2003 As a public speaker this book was written in response to an ever growing chorus of requests for my notes I have never had notes as the presentations I make are based on 40 years experience in the financial services industry both here and abroad After so many years I had begun to question more and more of the assumed wisdom of much of the financial services industry I left the industry in 2000 to free myself from the shackles of being paid to present a message I no longer believed in and to write this book I now believe that behavioural finance is more important than economics and as a result share markets are guided by forces beyond reason Their short term ups and downs can be linked to collective human behavior not a logical continuum of cause and effect In this book you will learn that history repeats itself you ll find our why there s no such thing as a market crash why investing for the long term is the surest way to tap the market s riches why market volatility is not a measure of risk and why looking backwards can damage your wealth
