

Chapter 18: Classification

I. Section I: The Importance of Classification

A. The Need for Systems

1. How many species have been named & classified by scientists?

1.7 million

2. What is taxonomy? Classification of living organisms into different categories.
3. Why do scientists use taxonomy to name & classify organisms?
To organize all living things; have a universal system of naming things.
4. What is the problem with using the common names of species? Give an example. One organism may have several common names: EXAMPLE – cougar, puma, mountain lion, bob cat, jaguar, panther
Or one common name may be used for several different organisms: EXAMPLE – The term “panther” may be used as the common name for several big cats.

B. Use the Internet to answer the following question:

- Who was Aristotle, where was he from & during what time period did he live? Greek philosopher who lived from 384 – 322 BC.
- How did Aristotle classify organisms? According to where they lived &/or what characteristics they had. Plants were classified according to the type of stem they had (herbaceous vs. woody) & animals by where they lived (air, water, land). This got to be confusing because some organisms lived in several environments or plants had both types of stems.

Neural Theories of Mind William R. Uttal, 2020-07-24 In this fascinating book William R Uttal raises the possibility that however much we learn about the anatomy and physiology of the brain and psychology we may never be able to cross the final bridge explaining how the mind is produced by the brain Three main classes of mind brain theory are considered and rejected field theories because they are based on a superficial analogy single cell theories because they emerge from a massive uncontrolled experimental program and neural net theories because they are constrained by combinatorial complexity To support his argument Uttal explores the empirical and conceptual foundations of these theoretical approaches and identifies flaws in their fundamental logic The author concludes that the problems preventing solution of the mind brain problem are intractable yet well within the confines of natural science
