be mixed so tightly together that we won't really be able to tell what is real and what is illusion. Instead of touching and sliding on a mobile phone we will make things happen by moving our eyes or by brainwaves. When we talk with someone or play an online game we will see that person in the same room with us. We will be able to touch and feel her or him through haptic technology. We won't need to search online with words because there will be a new Visual Web 100 times larger than the current Internet and we will find things by images, buy things by brands or just by looking at a logo on the jacket of a passerby. Language will be irrelevant and a merchant in a developing world will have access to global markets. Medical devices will cure schizophrenia, allow quadriplegics to walk. People will be able to touch and feel objects and other people who are not actually there for conversations, games and perhaps intimate experiences. From Kindergarten to on the job learning will become experiential. Children will visit great battlefields and tour historic places in VR rather than read about them in text books. Med students and surgeons will learn and practice on virtual humans rather than cadavers, oil rig workers will understand how to handle emergencies before they ever leave the home office. The Fourth Transformation is based on two years of research and about 400 interviews with technologists and business decision makers. It explains the technology and product landscape on a level designed to be interesting and useful to business thinkers and general audiences. Mostly it talks about how VR and AR are already being used or will be used in the next one to three years. It explains how this massive and fundamental transformation will be driven not just by Millennials but by the generation following them, which the authors have named the Minecraft Generation. Robert Scoble and Shel Israel have written this book in the hope that it will serve as a business thinker's guidebook to the near term future. They hope readers will walk away understanding the massive changes rapidly arising so that they will navigate a successful course through the changes they will be facing sooner than they or their competitors may realize just yet.
