Cognition and Emotion Eric Eich Professor of Psychology University of British Columbia,Berkeley John F. Kihlstrom Professor of Psychology University of California,Stanford CA Gordon H. Bower Albert Ray Lang Professor of Psychology Stanford University,Joseph P. Forgas Scientia Professor of Psychology University of New South Wales,Paula M. Niedenthal Scientia Professor of Psychology University of New South Wales,2000-07-28 Recent years have witnessed a revival of research in the interplay between cognition and emotion The reasons for this renaissance are many and varied In the first place emotion theorists have come to recognize the pivotal role of cognitive factors in virtually all aspects of the emotion process and to rely on basic cognitive factors and insight in creating new models of affective space Also the successful application of cognitive therapies to affective disorders has prompted clinical psychologists to work towards a clearer understanding of the connections between cognitive processes and emotional problems And whereas the cognitive revolutionaries of the 1960s regarded emotions with suspicion viewing them as nagging sources of hot noise in an otherwise cool rational and computer like system of information processing cognitive researchers of the 1990s regard emotions with respect owing to their potent and predictable effects on tasks as diverse as object perception episodic recall and risk assessment These intersecting lines of interest have made cognition and emotion one of the most active and rapidly developing areas within psychological science Written in debate format this book covers developing fields such as social cognition as well as classic areas such as memory learning perception and categorization The links between emotion and memory learning perception categorization social judgements and behavior are addressed Contributors come from the U S Canada Australia and France

Misery and Company Candace Clark, 2007-12-01 In a kind of social tour of sympathy Candace Clark reveals that the emotional experience we call sympathy has a history logic and life of its own Although sympathy may seem to be a natural reflexive reaction people are not born knowing when for whom and in what circumstances sympathy is appropriate Rather they learn elaborate highly specific rules different rules for men than for women that guide when to feel or display sympathy when to claim it and how to accept it Using extensive interviews cultural artifacts and intensive eavesdropping in public places such as hospitals and funeral parlors as well as analyzing charity appeals blues lyrics greeting cards novels and media reports Clark shows that we learn culturally prescribed rules that govern our expression of sympathy Clark's research methods are inventive and her glimpses of U S life revealing And you have to love a social scientist so respectful of Miss Manners Clifford Orwin Toronto Globe and Mail Clark offers a thought provoking and quite interesting etiquette of sympathy according to which we ought to act in order to preserve the sympathy credits we can call on in time of need Virginia Quarterly Review
