Assessing 21st Century Skills National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Testing and Assessment, Committee on the Assessment of 21st Century Skills, 2011-10-16 The routine jobs of yesterday are being replaced by technology and or shipped off shore In their place job categories that require knowledge management abstract reasoning and personal services seem to be growing The modern workplace requires workers to have broad cognitive and affective skills Often referred to as 21st century skills these skills include being able to solve complex problems to think critically about tasks to effectively communicate with people from a variety of different cultures and using a variety of different techniques to work in collaboration with others to adapt to rapidly changing environments and conditions for performing tasks to effectively manage one s work and to acquire new skills and information on one s own The National Research Council NRC has convened two prior workshops on the topic of 21st century skills The first held in 2007 was designed to examine research on the skills required for the 21st century workplace and the extent to which they are meaningfully different from earlier eras and require corresponding changes in educational experiences The second workshop held in 2009 was designed to explore demand for these types of skills consider intersections between science education reform goals and 21st century skills examine models of high quality science instruction that may develop the skills and consider science teacher readiness for 21st century skills The third workshop was intended to delve more deeply into the topic of assessment The goal for this workshop was to capitalize on the prior efforts and explore strategies for assessing the five skills identified earlier The Committee on the Assessment of 21st Century Skills was asked to organize a workshop that reviewed the assessments and related research for each of the five skills identified at the previous workshops with special attention to recent developments in technology enabled assessment of critical thinking and problem solving skills In designing the workshop the committee collapsed the five skills into three broad clusters as shown below Cognitive skills nonroutine problem solving critical thinking systems thinking Interpersonal skills complex communication social skills team work cultural sensitivity dealing with diversity Intrapersonal skills self management time management self development self regulation adaptability executive functioning Assessing 21st Century Skills provides an integrated summary of the presentations and discussions from both parts of the third workshop 2012 GCSE English results Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education Committee, 2013-06-11 The 2012 GCSE English results prompted significant controversy which ultimately resulted in an application for judicial review This report sets out the background to these events and identifies lessons to be learned The problems with GCSE English can be traced back to the 2007 09 development phase of the qualification in particular the turbulence which resulted from the shift away from a mostly linear to a modular system combined with a high proportion of controlled assessment and generous marking tolerances Exam board experts raised concerns at the time but these were not acted upon by the regulator the then interim Ofqual Further difficulties arose because of pressures from the school accountability system The problems experienced with GCSE English in 2012 highlighted serious weaknesses in the moderation of speaking and listening with consequences for grade awarding The current status of Ofqual as an independent regulator accountable to Parliament is the right one However the Coalition Government is bringing in wholesale changes to GCSEs and A levels to a tight timetable and at the same time Ofqual must have systems in place The Committee is also concerned that there is a rush towards separate exam systems for England Wales and Northern Ireland without careful reflection on what might be lost or consensus that this is the right thing to do

Review of Vocational Education Alison Wolf, 2011 The Corruption of the Curriculum Shirley Lawes, 2007 The authors of this book examine the British National Curriculum from several different perspectives and concentrate on various subject areas The unifying theme between these essays is the argument that the subjects in the school curriculum used to be regarded as discrete areas of knowledge which would be imparted to pupils by teachers motivated by a love of learning but that this has not been enough for recent governments who see schools as a means of promoting social and political goals that may or may not relate to traditional academic disciplines The contributors to this book argue that we need to return to the traditional view of education as a means of transmitting a body of knowledge from one generation to the next and that academic rigour and respect for the professionalism of teachers should take precedence over political manipulation of the curriculum
