Mesdag, Dingena A. Donner, 2000-09-30 Wheat is the world s most important agricultural commodity In Europe where wheat is the main staple bread wheat Triticum aestivum covers the majority of land on which wheat is cropped Wheat breeders and technologists have contributed greatly to the continued success of bread wheat and its products The bread making quality of a wheat variety can be described in relation to the processing its kernels must undergo to make a good bread Bread wheat kernels must be suitable for proper milling into a flour that can produce a dough capable of becoming fine bread The type of bread varies depending on local bread making practices Part I of this book contains a study of the anatomy and chemical composition of wheat kernels and of the fundamental difference between soft and hard

kernelled varieties It relates these characteristics to the processes of milling dough making and manufacturing of bread and to biscuit and pasta making The genetic basis for these characteristics is illustrated and assay methods for characterizing wheat varieties ranging from Saunders chewing test to the most recent developments in glutenin and gliadin research are evaluated Part II briefly describes country by country how bread making quality has been integrated into wheat breeding programmes throughout Europe and how breeders have attempted to resolve the conflict between yield and quality It describes how quality wheats travelled around the world from their endogenic source in Eastern Europe to North America and back again to Europe This explains how specific genetic material can appear in the pedigrees of varieties grown in a wide range of agro ecological zones In addition to giving an interesting historical survey the book points the way forward for breeders efforts in the future Bread Making Quality updates and interprets knowledge in a way that makes it particularly accessible for food technologists breeders students and teachers

Metropolitan Denver Andrew R. Goetz, E. Eric Boschmann, 2018-09-06 Nestled between the Rocky Mountains to the west and the High Plains to the east Denver Colorado is nicknamed the Mile High City because its official elevation is exactly one mile above sea level Over the past ten years it has also been one of the country's fastest growing metropolitan areas In Denver's early days its geographic proximity to the mineral rich mountains attracted miners and gold and silver booms and busts played a large role in its economic success Today its central location between the west and east coasts and between major cities of the Midwest makes it a key node for the distribution of goods and services as well as an optimal site for federal agencies and telecommunications companies In Metropolitan Denver Andrew R Goetz and E Eric Boschmann show how the city evolved from its origins as a mining town into a cosmopolitan metropolis They chart the foundations of Denver's recent economic development from mining and agriculture to energy defense and technology and examine the challenges engendered by a postwar population explosion that led to increasing income inequality and rapid growth in the number of Latino residents Highlighting the risks and rewards of regional collaboration in municipal governance Goetz and Boschmann recount public works projects such as the construction of the Denver International Airport and explore the smart growth movement that shifted development from postwar low density automobile based suburban and exurban sprawl to higher density mixed use transit oriented urban centers Because of its proximity to the mountains and generally sunny weather Denver has a reputation as a very active outdoor oriented city and a desirable place to live and work Metropolitan Denver reveals the purposeful civic decisions made regarding tourism downtown urban revitalization and cultural led economic development that make the city a destination
