Spirit Hunger Gari Meacham, 2012-10-23 We all have a desperate need for God not just for following him or being committed to him but to be intimately connected to him We long for purpose for affirmation for attention for nurture But Gari Meacham writes that we fall short of being desperate for God or we miss the longed for romance with God we hear about in scripture We re uncertain how to distinguish our longings from our fears When says Meacham did our longings turn to hauntings And when did we buy into the counterfeit yearnings for control and the insecurity perfectionism and other attitudes that quench Spirit Hunger The answer to Spirit Hunger is to engage God like never before In this book Meacham shows through her story and the stories of others how to turn worry into belief problems and heartaches into a life of intimate prayer and sighs for intimacy into closeness with God She discusses her discoveries about prayer including why asking is sometimes hard how we can notice and track God s movements as we seek his answers and why it s sometimes such a struggle to believe after we ve prayed Meacham writes With the authenticity of my own life stories marriage to a professional baseball player struggles with severe food bondage and a father who was a quadriplegic I came to the crisp realization that my prayer life and my belief needed to match Spirit Hunger provides a clear path towards matching these heart cries leading away from crumbs and counterfeit to a hungering for God

Watershed Moments Gari Meacham,2013-11-05 Our lives consist of moments Stitched together like the seams on a coat these moments cloak us in awareness and possibility But what if we miss our moments What if we live in a bland state of wandering Seeking growth seeking passion but missing the moments in which God tries to pull the thread through the cloth in the way we ve dreamed of Watershed moments are the turning points in our lives brought on by circumstances which stop us in our tracks A new direction a fresh perspective an answered prayer a humble surrender these are the moments that redirect us leaving us profoundly changed Through a progression of seven types of Watershed moments the Watersheds of change unraveling rebuilding purpose abandoning control overcoming and belief Gari portrays

Spiritual Hunger Jim Plueddemann,1993-06 A study of these passages on desiring God can help Christians discover anew that only the Bread of Life and the Living Water can satisfy their souls If Ye Shall Ask...[First Edition] Oswald Chambers,2018-09-03 Originally published as If Ye Shall Ask this small book on prayer comprises lectures Chambers gave at the Bible Training College in London where he focused on all aspects of prayer from prayer s simplicity to intercessory prayer for others He believed that prayer changes the one praying as much as prayer moves the hand of God The foreword introduces readers to a simple man of keen insight who regardless of who he was with or what they were doing without warning would say Off with your hats it is good to pray everywhere followed by a brief prayer Chambers was a spiritual realist who believed prayer enabled God to perform His order through those who pray even though he didn t consider prayer a natural function of the worldly minded However he knew prayer was a way of getting to know God that would develop the life of God in those who prayed This powerful book on prayer filled with wisdom and keen perception is one to savor slowly and return to time and time again Written by a devout man of God who shows us what we are missing when we don t have the life of God in us There aren t enough stars to value its worth whether five ten fifty or a hundred Cited from review by Gail Welborn Seattle Christian Book Review Examiner Building a Clean Machine Michael Johnston,Sahr John Kpundeh,2004 Abstract Many societies have limited corruption through the broad based mobilization of a diverse range of interests willing and able to defend themselves by making meaningful demands for accountability of and limits on official power and for an end to illicit advantages enjoyed by others Historically such a process has taken place gradually as political development has proceeded and the base of participation broadens But today s high corruption societies cannot wait for several generations to see such developments take place Johnston and Kpundeh argue that social action coalitions linking public and private actors are a way to mobilize these sorts of participation and advocacy Such coalitions are neither a new idea nor a guarantee of successful reforms In many instances they win out by default as an anti corruption strategy But they contend that if sustained by careful planning and a diverse set of incentives they can reinforce political will and enhance the strength of civil society

Coalition building efforts are underway in many societies But too often they have focused only on anti corruption tactics and pursuing their own growth rather than looking at the coalition building process in more general terms In Part I the authors employ Wilson s 1973 analysis of the incentives that motivate and reward participation in organizations This approach helps them identify ways in which the anti corruption goals can be augmented by other kinds of appeals even when material incentives are scarce The authors also identify four stages of the coalition building process formation credibility expansion and transformation in which differing combinations of incentives will be necessary to address the group s most important problems and opportunities In Part II the authors examine two important coalition building efforts in light of the discussions thus far Ghana s Anti Corruption Coalition and the Bangalore Agenda Task Force in Bangalore Karnataka State India In Part III the authors link those cases to a broader analysis suggesting that while purposive incentives are common in the early phases of all coalitions other varieties must be added to the mix Wilson s scheme points to ways in which the imaginative use of incentives can aid the transition from one phase of coalition development to the next The authors conclude with general strategic issues suggesting ways in which their analysis can be applied to those questions given the important variations to be found among cases This paper a product of the Governance Finance and Regulation Division World Bank Institute is part of a larger effort in the institute to address governance and anti corruption issues in developing countries

Hollywood Highbrow Shyon Baumann, 2018-06-05 Today s moviegoers and critics generally consider some Hollywood products even some blockbusters to be legitimate works of art But during the first half century of motion pictures very few Americans would have thought to call an American movie art Up through the 1950s American movies were regarded as a form of popular even lower class entertainment By the 1960s and 1970s however viewers were regularly judging Hollywood films by artistic criteria previously applied only to high art forms In Hollywood Highbrow Shyon Baumann for the first time tells how social and cultural forces radically changed the public s perceptions of American movies just as those forces were radically changing the movies themselves The development in the United States of an appreciation of film as an art was Baumann shows the product of large changes in Hollywood and American society as a whole With the postwar rise of television American movie audiences shrank dramatically and Hollywood responded by appealing to richer and more educated viewers Around the same time European ideas about the director as artist an easing of censorship and the development of art house cinemas film festivals and the academic field of film studies encouraged the idea that some American movies and not just European ones deserved to be considered art

China In World History S. A. M. Adshead, 2016-01-13 A novel approach to Chinese history is adopted here in that the theme of the book is China s relations with the non Chinese world not only political and economic but cultural social and technological as well It seeks to show that China's history is part of everyone's history. In particular, it traces China's relationship since the thirteenth century to the emergent world order and the various world institutions of which that order is composed. Each chapter discusses China's comparative place in the world, the avenues of contact between China and other civilizations, and who and what passed along these channels.

Health Aspects of Aging Gari Lesnoff-Caravaglia, 2007. This second edition of Health Aspects of Aging serves to broaden the perspectives of societal change due to increases in life expectancy, as well as the effects of age-related changes as they impinge upon the provision of health care for older persons. The growing presence of a large number of persons aged 65 and older worldwide has propelled a re-evaluation of the nature of life that is protracted to 100 years and beyond. The emphasis in this second edition is to replace the prevailing problem approach to aging by a problem-solving approach. The problem-solving approach of this volume has allowed for the incorporation of the concept of new social structures and the development of intervention and prevention strategies along with new technologies. Such new products and health care measures include those that are deliberately aimed to offset debilities due to normal age changes, the onslaught of diseases, incongruous environments, and altered social states. Such a multi-disciplinary perspective underscores the fact that aging permeates not only biological systems but clinical medicine, economics, ethics, and the very fabric of society. The chapters in this volume address these issues from the standpoints of diverse disciplines and professional positions. Since biological changes are primary issues, the aging process is largely described from the perspective of biological changes related to age and to particular dysfunctions. The environmental features and the potential introduction of technological interventions are interspersed within chapters, as well as finding primary focus in particular chapters. The maturity of the technology described in the chapters varies from devices and systems that are nearly ready to be marketed to concepts and prototypes that are still in the design and developmental stages in the laboratory. The relationship between the provision of appropriate health care and the responsible utilization of technologies as described in this volume will serve to enhance the nature of life extension.
