This book offers a comprehensive introduction to the areas of leadership, management and supervision for line managers, supervisors and senior practitioners Taking a problem-solving approach, the book explores different aspects of leadership and management including personal effectiveness, managing and leading supervision, managing training and development, managing resources and leading and developing a team. A precise review of each project area is linked to a set of audit tools that a manager can mobilise in order to review team and personal effectiveness and develop practice. Continuing work on Pepys's library, and recent discoveries, necessitate expansion of the content and entries in the original volumes. This is the first in the Supplementary Series. Pepys's library has been, as he directed, preserved intact at his old Cambridge college since 1724. Between 1978 and 1994 a complete catalogue was published for the first time. The present title, essential to all users of the first volume in that series, N.A. Smith's Printed Books, vastly enhances the range of information available. The short-title arrangement of Printed Books is replaced by a numerical listing which follows the library's shelf-order; many entries have been extended, and where possible updated with reference to new scholarship; the location of MSS and other material treated elsewhere in the catalogue is also indicated, providing for the first time a published conspectus of the whole library. Extensive indexes have been provided for authors and ancillary contributors, subjects, printers and places of publication, and references which reflect Pepys himself and his bibliophilism. Concordances identify the Pepys books covered by STC, Wing, ESTC and other bibliographies. Dr CHARLES KNIGHTON gained his Ph D from Magdalene College, Cambridge. Vols. 28-30 accompanied by separately published parts with title: Indices and necrology. Shanghai. 1926. A city of nomads divided into national fiefdoms- British, French, American and Chinese. But over all of these, there is a greater power - of the warlords, the gangsters, the people who make the city tick. A city teeming with the scent of possibility. A city where your most dangerous dream might come true. For Richard Field, it is a world far away from his experience. Seconded to the police force, his first moment of active duty is a brutal crime scene. A young woman, Lena Orlov, a White Russian, lies spreadeagled on her bed, sadistically murdered. As he begins to peer through the glittering surface to the murky depths beneath, he sees another world - a world where everything has its price, and where human life is merely another means of barter. With the police force riven with rivalries, petty and political, it becomes clear that he must make his own way through the investigation. His only guide is another beautiful White Russian, Natascha Medvedev, whose allegiance can be bought and for whom self preservation is the ultimate goal. In a city where appearance is all and reality a dangerous luxury, Field is driven into the darkness beyond the dazzle of society to a world where the basest of human needs are met and where the truth can be a fatal commodity... In April 2011 militant hate groups affiliated with Hungary's Neo-Nazi Jobbik party attempted to ethnically cleanse the northern Hungarian town of Gyöngyöspata of its Roma inhabitants. They were thwarted by the Good Friday evacuation of 267 Roma women and children by the Hungarian Red Cross and the ensuing international uproar which left the center-right Fidesz government little choice but to ban the very "uniformed criminals" it had allowed to terrorize Roma communities for over a year. Seeking to deflect criticism from itself, the Fidesz government accused American businessman, philanthropist and Red Cross volunteer, Richard Field, of "staging a mock evacuation" for the purpose of "harming Hungary's image abroad." This is Field's story told through articles he wrote for The Budapest Times, open letters to public officials, letters to editors, and speeches. This volume gives the reader the latest information in the rapidly changing field of chemical dependency with an emphasis on family dynamics, the impact of family on individuals, and their use of alcohol/drugs. The text is designed to give readers as full an understanding of the dynamics of chemical dependency as possible as well as to foster and develop an effective perspective on the multifaceted aspects and problems associated with alcohol/drug use, abuse, and addiction.

The definitive guide for people wanting to make a positive difference in the world.
