Securing the Belt and Road Initiative Alessandro Arduino, Xue Gong, 2018-02-01 This collection explores the expansion of Chinese outbound investments aimed to sustain the increased need for natural resources and how they have amplified the magnitude of a possible international crisis that the People's Republic of China may face in the near future by bringing together the views of a wide range of scholars President Xi's Belt and Road initiative BRI aimed to promote economic development and exchanges with China for over 60 countries necessitates a wide range of security procedures While the threats to Chinese enterprises and Chinese workers based on foreign soil are poised to increase there is an urgent need to develop new guidelines for risk assessment special insurance and crisis management While the Chinese State Owned Enterprises are expanding their international reach capabilities they still do not have the capacity to assure adequate security In such a climate this collection will be of profound value to policy makers those working in the financial sector and academics

The Diversity of Modern Capitalism Bruno Amable, 2003-12-04 This book considers why institutional forms of modern capitalist economies differ internationally and proposes a typology of capitalism based on the theory of institutional complementarity Different economic models are not simply characterized by different institutional forms but also by particular patterns of interaction between complementary institutions which are the core characteristics of these models Institutions are not just simply devices which would be chosen by social engineers in order to perform a function as efficiently as possible they are the outcome of a political economy process Therefore institutional change should be envisaged not as a move towards a hypothetical one best way but as a result of socio-political compromises Based on a theory of institutions and comparative capitalism the book proposes an analysis of the diversity of modern economies from America to Korea and identifies five different models the market based Anglo Saxon model Asian capitalism the Continental European model the social democratic economies and the Mediterranean model Each of these types of capitalism is characterized by specific institutional complementarities The question of the stability of the Continental European model of capitalism has been open since the beginning of the 1990s inferior macroeconomic performance compared to Anglo Saxon economies alleged unsustainability of its welfare systems too rigid markets etc The book examines the institutional transformations that have taken place within Continental European economies and analyses the political project behind the attempts at transforming the Continental model It argues that Continental European economies will most likely stay very different from the market

based economies and can political strategies promoting institutional change aiming at convergence with the Anglo Saxon model are bound to meet considerable opposition

Food Packaging Technology Richard Coles, Derek McDowell, Mark J. Kirwan, 2003-08-15 The protection and preservation of a product the launch of new products or re launch of existing products perception of added value to products or services and cost reduction in the supply chain are all objectives of food packaging Taking into consideration the requirements specific to different products how can one package successfully meet all of these goals Food Packaging Technology provides a contemporary overview of food processing and packaging technologies Covering the wide range of issues you face when developing innovative food packaging the book includes Food packaging strategy design and development Food biodeterioration and methods of preservation Packaged product quality and shelf life Logistical packaging for food marketing systems Packaging materials and processes The battle rages over which type of container should be used for which application It is therefore necessary to consider which materials or combination of materials and processes will best serve the market and enhance brand value Food Packaging Technology gives you the tools to determine which form of packaging will meet your business goals without compromising the safety of your product

Privatizing Russia Maxim Boycko, Andrei Shleifer, Robert Vishny, 1997-01-22 Privatizing Russia offers an inside look at one of the most remarkable reforms in recent history Having started on the back burner of Russian politics in the fall of 1991 mass privatization was completed on July 1 1994 with two thirds of the Russian industry privately owned a rapidly rising stock market and 40 million Russians owning company shares The authors all key participants in the reform effort describe the events and the ideas driving privatization They argue that successful reformers must recognize privatization as a process of depoliticizing firms in the face of massive opposition making the firm responsive to market rather than political influences The authors first review the economic theory of property rights identifying the political influence on firms as the fundamental failure of property rights under socialism They detail the process of coalition building and compromise that ultimately shaped privatization The main elements of the Russian program corporatization voucher use and voucher auctions are described as is the responsiveness of privatized firms to outside investors Finally the market values of privatized assets are assessed for indications of how much progress the country has made toward reforming its economy In many respects privatization has been a great success Market concepts of property ownership and corporate management are shaking up Russian firms at a breathtaking pace creating powerful economic and political stimuli for continuation of market reforms At the same time the authors caution the political landscape remains treacherous as old line politicians reluctantly cede their property rights and authority over firms
