South Africa's Agrarian Question Hubert Cochet, Ward Anseeuw, Sandrine Fréguin-Gresh, 2015 Based on an in depth analysis of several contrasting agricultural regions this book aims to assess South Africa's ongoing agrarian reform and the country's agrarian dynamics Without fundamentally questioning the highly specialized fossil energy and synthetic input dependent oligopolistic entrepreneurial agricultural production model which is presently structuring the sector and is guiding the reforms a more equitable redistribution of resources and value addition will by no means be possible This book examines and contributes to the structural questions that underpin the current stagnation of South Africa's agrarian reform Presenting fresh approaches in analysing agrarian issues and tools to assess farming systems and agricultural development this incisive study will be an important resource to policy makers academics and those with an interest in agrarian reform

The Agrarian Question in South Africa Henry Bernstein, 2014-01-21 This is the first collection of its kind It presents a critical political economy of the agrarian question in post apartheid South Africa informed by the results of research undertaken since the transition from apartheid started in 1990 The articles by well known South African British and American scholars cover a variety of topical theoretical empirical and policy issues firmly rooted in an historical perspective

Agrarian Transformations Gillian Hart, Andrew Turton, Benjamin White, 1992 This collection of fourteen essays presents a unique comparative analysis of agrarian change in the main rice growing regions of Indonesia Malaysia the Philippines and Thailand Its central theme is the interplay between agrarian relations and wider political economic systems By drawing on historical materials as well as intensive field research the contributors show how local level mechanisms of labor control and accumulation both reflect and alter larger political and economic forces The key to understanding these connections lies in the structure and exercise of power at different levels of society The approach developed in this volume grows out of a set of detailed local level studies in regions that have experienced rapid technological change and commercialization This comparative focus calls into question widely held views of technology and the growth of markets as the chief sources of agrarian change By relating local level processes to variations in the structure of state power the history of agrarian resistance and the particular forms of capitalist development the authors suggest an alternative approach to the analysis of agrarian change This collection of fourteen essays presents a unique comparative analysis of agrarian change in the main rice growing regions of Indonesia Malaysia the Philippines and Thailand Its central theme is the interplay between agrarian relations and wider political economic systems By drawing on historical materials as well as intensive field research the contributors show how local level mechanisms of labor control and accumulation both reflect and alter larger political and economic forces The key to understanding these connections lies in the structure and exercise of power at different levels of society The approach developed in this volume grows out of a set of detailed local level studies in regions that have experienced rapid technological change and commercialization This comparative focus calls into question widely held views of technology and the growth of markets as the chief sources of agrarian change By relating local level processes to variations in the structure of state power the history of agrarian resistance and the particular forms of capitalist development the authors suggest an alternative approach to the analysis of agrarian change
