Multiple Representations in Chemical Education John K. Gilbert, David Treagust, 2009-02-28 Chemistry seeks to provide qualitative and quantitative explanations for the observed behaviour of elements and their compounds Doing so involves making use of three types of representation the macro the empirical properties of substances the sub micro the natures of the entities giving rise to those properties and the symbolic the number of entities involved in any changes that take place Although understanding this triplet relationship is a key aspect of chemical education there is considerable evidence that students find great difficulty in achieving mastery of the ideas involved In bringing together the work of leading chemistry educators who are researching the triplet relationship at the secondary and university levels the book discusses the learning involved the problems that students encounter and successful approaches to teaching Based on the reported research the editors argue for a coherent model for understanding the triplet relationship in chemical education

Economic Fables Ariel Rubinstein, 2012 I had the good fortune to grow up in a wonderful area of Jerusalem surrounded by a diverse range of people Rabbi Meizel the communist Sala Marcel my widowed Aunt Hannah and the intellectual Yaacovson As far as I m concerned the opinion of such people is just as authoritative for making social and economic decisions as the opinion of an expert using a model Part memoir part crash course in economic theory this deeply engaging book by one of the world s foremost economists looks at economic ideas through a personal lens Together with an introduction to some of the central concepts in modern economic thought Ariel Rubinstein offers some powerful and entertaining reflections on his childhood family and career In doing so he challenges many of the central tenets of game theory and sheds light on the role economics can play in society at large Economic Fables is as thought provoking for seasoned economists as it is enlightening for newcomers to the field
