HP 48SX Engineering Mathematics Library John F. Holland, 1992 When surveying the computer technology available for working out mathematical problems one fact quickly becomes apparent most personal and super computers are not designed for computation Without the aid of costly and often only partially compatible software programs most computer operating systems cannot perform mathematical computations Mathematics textbooks and handbooks provide useful equations but they do not offer accessible means for evaluation The HP48SX an object oriented computer containing a custom CPU and operating system is designed specifically for this task With a low cost computer chip and an inexpensive calculator the HP 48SX Engineering Mathematics Library An Introduction to Symbolic and Complex Computation with Applications package offers users an affordable and versatile alternative for solving simple and complex problems Key Features Offers single button plotting of all HP 48 MATHLIB and all real and complex functions stored in the VAR directory linear semi log and log log lots with titles and labeled axes Creates 36 user defined programmable command menus instead of offering users stock menu driven commands Supports many different fields of study including physicists and electrical mechanical and aerospace engineers where computation ranges from basic to advanced mathematics Provides extensive symbolic algebra calculus and linear algebra tools Features menus and a manual logically built around subject areas Allows for over 300 tabulations of complex math functions most within 10 digit accuracy 100 statistical operations and tests plus 50 statistical probability distributions and their inverses 100 data and signal processing operations 200 vector and matrix commands plus 50 symbolic array commands 200 algebra operations including 3 powerful complex coefficient polynomial root solvers 50 data editing sorting windowing clipping and peak and valley analysis commands Can solve a 40 x 40 linear system of equations with iterative refinement in under 4 minutes HP 41/HP 48 Transitions William C. The Rand/UCLA Appropriateness Method User's Manual Kathryn Fitch, Steven J. Bernstein, Maria Delores Aguilar, Mary S. Aguilar, Bernard Burnand, Pablo Lazaro, Juan Ramon LaCalle, 2001 Health systems should function in such a way that the amount of inappropriate care is minimized while at the same time stinting as little as possible on appropriate and necessary care The ability to determine and identify which care is overused and which is underused is essential to this functioning To this end the RAND UCLA Appropriateness Method was developed in the 1980s It has been further developed and refined in North America and increasingly in Europe The rationale behind the method is that randomized clinical trials the gold standard for evidence based medicine are generally either not available or cannot provide evidence at a level of detail sufficient to apply to the wide range of patients seen in everyday clinical practice Although robust scientific evidence about the benefits of many procedures is lacking physicians must nonetheless make decisions every day about when to use them Consequently a method was developed that combined the best available scientific evidence with the collective judgment of experts to yield a statement regarding the appropriateness of performing a procedure at the level of patient specific symptoms medical history and test results This manual presents step by step guidelines for conceptualising designing and carrying out a study of the appropriateness of medical or surgical procedures for either diagnosis or treatment using the RAND UCLA Appropriateness Method The manual distills the experience of many researchers in North America and Europe and presents current as of the year 2000 thinking on the subject Although the manual is self contained and complete the authors do not recommend that those unfamiliar with the RAND UCLA Appropriateness Method independently conduct an appropriateness study instead they suggest seeing one before doing one To this end contact information is provided to assist potential users of the method
