

Oh Dear, Here Comes the Mohel!

Imagine yourself as a cattle manager looking to assess the population size and growth rate of deer. Currently, the female adult deer population exhibits fast exponential growth. In the population growth model, assume that a healthy year results in the following scenario: do you think your population has been affected by your hunt of deer?

Scenario 1: The female population grows by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting). The population growth rate of the deer is positive because the deer population grows 10% yearly (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting). However, the population growth rate is positive because the population grows 10% yearly (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting). This population growth rate is positive because the population grows 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting).

Scenario 2: The female population grows by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting). The population growth rate of the deer is positive because the population grows 10% yearly (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting). This population growth rate is positive because the population grows 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting).

Scenario 3: The female population grows by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting). The population growth rate of the deer is positive because the population grows 10% yearly (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting).

Scenario 4: The female population grows by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting). The population growth rate of the deer is positive because the population grows 10% yearly (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting). This population growth rate is positive because the population grows 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting) and the male population decreases by 10% annually (regardless of the effect of hunting).

Vicious Jon T. Coleman,2008-10-01 Over a continent and three centuries American livestock owners destroyed wolves to protect the beasts that supplied them with food clothing mobility and wealth The brutality of the campaign soon exceeded wolves misdeeds Wolves menaced property not people but storytellers often depicted the animals as ravenous threats to human safety Subjects of nightmares and legends wolves fell prey not only to Americans thirst for land and resources but also to their deeper anxieties about the untamed frontier Now Americans study and protect wolves and jail hunters who shoot them without authorization Wolves have become the poster beasts of the great American wilderness and the federal government has paid millions of dollars to reintroduce them to scenic habitats like Yellowstone National Park Why did Americans hate wolves for centuries And given the ferocity of this loathing why are Americans now so protective of the animals In this ambitious history of wolves in America and of the humans who have hated and then loved them Jon Coleman investigates a fraught relationship between two species and uncovers striking similarities deadly differences and all too frequently tragic misunderstanding

The Sea Wolves Nicholas Read, 2013-07-15 The Sea Wolves sets out to disprove the notion of the Big Bad Wolf especially as it is applied to coastal wolves a unique strain of wolf that lives in the rainforest along the Pacific coast of Canada Genetically distinct from their inland cousins and from wolves in any other part of the world coastal wolves can swim like otters and fish like the bears with whom they share the rainforest Smaller than the gray wolves that live on the other side of the Coast Mountains these wolves are highly social and fiercely intelligent creatures Living in the isolated wilderness of the Great Bear Rainforest coastal wolves have also enjoyed a unique relationship with man The First Nations people who have shared their territory for thousands of years do not see them as a nuisance species but instead have long offered the wolf a place of respect and admiration within their culture Illustrated with almost one hundred of Ian McAllister s magnificent photographs The Sea Wolves presents a strong case for the importance of preserving the Great Bear Rainforest for the wolves the bears and the other unique creatures that live there
