Financial Terms Simplified Dec 24 2021 Ever wondered what phrases like ‘underwater mortgage’, ‘money mules’, ‘peer to peer lending’, ‘virtual key pad’, ‘bit coins’ and many more such unique terms imply? This book attempts to add to the understanding of these words by giving their source of origin and evolution. It decodes and demystifies financial terminology which is genuinely complex and difficult to comprehend. Financial words and phrases are increasing by the day at the same pace at which developments in the financial world are taking place. Akin to the emergence of innovative financial transactions and mechanisms, there has been a glut of terms coined by financial practitioners and analysts whose meaning is not readily understood. Financial Terms Simplified covers terminology from the world of Banking, Insurance, Capital Markets and Finance. The terms have been culled from a range of literature with the emphasis being on presenting innovative terms in common usage. This book can be a useful dictionary for academics, students and finance professionals. Libraries of educational institutions, chambers of commerce and bank training colleges too will find this lexicon a handy reference.

Example: What is Market Capitalization? Market capitalization refers to a company's total value. Analysts determine it by multiplying the number of shares in existence times the price of the stock. This concept can also be utilized to measure the full value of a stock exchange. The New York Stock Exchange market capitalization would equal the value of all publicly traded companies on the exchange added together. Market cap is another name for market capitalization. Examples of how this is figured make it easier to understand. Companies that have 2 million shares which have been issued that sell for $20 apiece have a market cap of $40 million. If an investor had enough money and could get the stockholders to agree to sell their shares, he or she could purchase the company for $40 million total. In practice many shareholders would want more than the current share price to sell their stock. There are three different main sizes of market capitalization among traded companies. These are large cap, mid cap, and small cap corporations. Large cap companies are generally considered the least risky ones in which to invest. They typically possess substantial financial resources to survive economic downturns. They are also generally leaders in their industries. This gives them a smaller amount of growth opportunity. Because of this the returns for these large cap companies are often not as spectacular as with successful companies in the other two categories. They also have a significantly greater chance of paying dividends out to their share holders. Large cap corporations have $5 billion and higher capitalization. Mid cap companies are generally less risky than the smaller companies. They still do not have the same possibilities for aggressive growth. Mid cap companies commonly possess market capitalization of from $1 billion to $5 billion. Studies have shown that mid caps have outperformed large cap and small cap corporation stocks in the past 20 years. Small cap corporations are those which possess under $1 billion in market capitalization. These tinier companies have often completed an Initial Public Offering in the recent past. Such companies are considered the riskiest of the three types. This is because in economic downturns, they have the greatest chance of failing or defaulting. They also enjoy plenty of opportunity and space to expand. This means that they potentially could be extremely profitable if they succeed. Note: This example description is shorted due to publish restrictions. Each term is explained with 600 words and more.
