A Thousand Years of Nonlinear History Manuel De Landa,1997 More than a simple expository history A Thousand Years of Nonlinear History sketches the outlines of a renewed materialist philosophy of history in the tradition of Fernand Braudel Gilles Deleuze and Félix Guattari while also engaging the critical new understanding of material processes derived from the sciences of dynamics Following in the wake of his groundbreaking War in the Age of Intelligent Machines Manuel De Landa presents a radical synthesis of historical development over the last one thousand years More than a simple expository history A Thousand Years of Nonlinear History sketches the outlines of a renewed materialist philosophy of history in the tradition of Fernand Braudel Gilles Deleuze and Félix Guattari while also engaging the critical new understanding of material processes derived from the sciences of dynamics Working against prevailing attitudes that see history as an arena of texts discourses ideologies and metaphors De Landa traces the concrete movements and interplays of matter and energy through human populations in the last millennium De Landa attacks three domains that have given shape to human societies economics biology and linguistics In every case what one sees is the self directed processes of matter and energy interacting with the whim and will of human history itself to form a panoramic vision of the West free of rigid teleology and naive notions of progress and even more important free of any deterministic source of its urban institutional and technological forms Rather the source of all concrete forms in the West s history are shown to derive from internal morphogenetic capabilities that lie within the flow of matter energy itself

Computer Theology Timothy Jurgensen,Bertrand du Castel,Timothy M. Jurgensen,2008 Computers are complex tools of the human species To make them work well for us we have to specify their actions in very great detail When properly instructed networks of computers take on the trappings of human social orders derived from the physiological characteristics and capabilities of our species To create a social order we engage in grouping mechanisms through which the actions of the individuals within the group are influenced From a technical perspective such grouping mechanisms form the trust environments within which we can effect policy Historically the most comprehensive such environments have been formed by religions Within a specific religion the policy framework is established by a statement of theology So if we connect all the dots when we want to tell our computers how to act in a manner paralleling human social orders we must define for them a theology So goes the rationale explored in great detail by the authors of Computer Theology Based on their combined tenure of almost a century working in the realms of computer systems and their ubiquitous networks du Castel and Jurgensen have expressed both social and computer systems through the same concepts The result offers a unique perspective on the interconnection between people and machines that we have come to understand as the World Wide Web
