Asteroid Answers to Ancient Calendar Mysteries Herbert B. Stollorz,2008-07-03 Ancient calendars found around the world are designed to end one point in time They communicate an urgent warning to everyone alive today Complex bronze and gold clocks with multiple dials are found in museums around the world Why they have such advanced intricacy has stumped scientists for hundreds of years This book reveals why the ancients built so many pyramids observatories as well as those complex gold and bronze clocks with more than one dial It surprised me greatly to discover that their various complex designs in one way or another converge on 21 December 2012 It amazes me that ancient cultures separated by thousands of miles of geography and thousands of years in chronology agree so precisely in the cyclical nature of time history and prophecy which is history written in advance The most famous example is the Mayan Aztec calendar which ends its 25 626 year cycle on that momentous date Some researchers have also found 21 December 2012 in what is called the Bible Code Using very different research methods I discovered it in the Bible s book of Revelation and Daniel s prophecies It is one of the most important dates in the plan of God for all humanity

Approaches to Language: Data, Theory, and Explanation Ángel J. Gallego,Aritz Irurtzun,2020-12-24 The study of language has changed substantially in the last decades In particular the development of new technologies has allowed the emergence of new experimental techniques which complement more traditional approaches to data in linguistics like informal reports of native speakers judgments surveys corpus studies or fieldwork This move is an enriching feature of contemporary linguistics allowing for a better understanding of a phenomenon as complex as natural language where all sorts of factors internal and external to the individual interact Chomsky 2005 This has generated some sort of divergence not only in research approaches but also in the phenomena studied with an increasing specialization between subfields and accounts At the same time it has also led to subfield isolation and methodological a priori with some researchers even claiming that theoretical linguistics has little to offer to cognitive science see for instance Edelman Phillips den Dikken Bernstein Tortora Sprouse Sch tze Phillips 2013

Is Science Racist? Jonathan Marks,2017-02-27 Every arena of science has its own flash point issues chemistry and poison gas physics and the atom bomb and genetics has had a troubled history with race As Jonathan Marks reveals this dangerous relationship rumbles on to this day still leaving plenty of leeway for a belief in the basic natural inequality of races The eugenic science of the early twentieth century and the commodified genomic science of today are unified by the mistaken belief that human races are naturalistic categories Yet their boundaries are founded neither in biology nor in genetics and not being a formal scientific concept race is largely not accessible to the scientist As Marks argues race can only be grasped through the humanities historically experientially politically This wise witty essay explores the persistence and legacy of scientific racism which misappropriates the authority of science and undermines it by converting it into a social weapon

Human Dimension and Interior Space Julius Panero, Martin Zelnik, 2014-01-21 The study of human body measurements on a comparative basis is known as anthropometrics. Its applicability to the design process is seen in the physical fit or interface between the human body and the various components of interior space. Human Dimension and Interior Space is the first major anthropometrically based reference book of design standards for use by all those involved with the physical planning and detailing of interiors including interior designers, architects, furniture designers, builders, industrial designers, and students of design. The use of anthropometric data, although no substitute for good design or sound professional judgment, should be viewed as one of the many tools required in the design process. This comprehensive overview of anthropometrics consists of three parts. The first part deals with the theory and application of anthropometrics and includes a special section dealing with physically disabled and elderly people. It provides the designer with the fundamentals of anthropometrics and a basic understanding of how interior design standards are established. The second part contains easy-to-read, illustrated anthropometric tables which provide the most current data available on human body size, organized by age and percentile groupings. Also included is data relative to the range of joint motion and body sizes of children. The third part contains hundreds of dimensioned drawings illustrating in plan and section the proper anthropometrically based relationship between user and space. The types of spaces range from residential and commercial to recreational and institutional, and all dimensions include metric conversions. In the Epilogue, the authors challenge the interior design profession, the building industry, and the furniture manufacturer to seriously explore the problem of adjustability in design. They expose the fallacy of designing to accommodate the so-called average man, who in fact does not exist. Using government data, including studies prepared by Dr. Howard Stoudt, Dr. Albert Damon, and Dr. Ross McFarland (formerly of the Harvard School of Public Health) and Jean Roberts of the U.S. Public Health Service, Panero and Zelnik have devised a system of interior design reference standards, easily understood through a series of charts and situation drawings. With Human Dimension and Interior Space, these standards are now accessible to all designers of interior environments.
