Jolliffe, 2013-03-09 Principal component analysis is probably the oldest and best known of the It was first introduced by

Pearson 1901 techniques of multivariate analysis and developed independently by Hotelling 1933 Like many multivariate methods it was not widely used until the advent of electronic computers but it is now well entrenched in virtually every statistical computer package The central idea of principal component analysis is to reduce the dimensionality of a data set in which there are a large number of interrelated variables while retaining as much as possible of the variation present in the data set This reduction is achieved by transforming to a new set of variables the principal components which are uncorrelated and which are ordered so that the first few retain most of the variation present in all of the original variables Computation of the principal components reduces to the solution of an eigenvalue eigenvector problem for a positive semidefinite symmetric matrix Thus the definition and computation of principal components are straightforward but as will be seen this apparently simple technique has a wide variety of different applications as well as a number of different derivations Any feelings that principal component analysis is a narrow subject should soon be dispelled by the present book indeed some quite broad topics which are related to principal component analysis receive no more than a brief mention in the final two chapters

Truncated Predictor Feedback for Time-Delay Systems Bin Zhou, 2014-05-29 This book provides a systematic approach to the design of predictor based controllers for time varying linear systems with either time varying input or state delays Differently from those traditional predictor based controllers which are infinite dimensional static feedback laws and may cause difficulties in their practical implementation this book develops a truncated predictor feedback TPF which involves only finite dimensional static state feedback Features and topics A novel approach referred to as truncated predictor feedback for the stabilization of time varying time delay systems in both the continuous time setting and the discrete time setting is built systematically Semi global and global stabilization problems of linear time delay systems subject to either magnitude saturation or energy constraints are solved in a systematic manner Both stabilization of a single system and consensus of a group of systems multi agent systems are treated in a unified manner by applying the truncated predictor feedback and predictor feedback The properties of the solutions to a class of parametric differential and difference Lyapunov matrix equations are presented in detail Detailed numerical examples and applications to the spacecraft rendezvous and formation flying problems are provided to demonstrate the usefulness of the presented theoretical results This book can be a useful resource for the researchers engineers and graduate students in the fields of control applied mathematics mechanical engineering electrical engineering and aerospace engineering
