Welte,2013-11-11 Current and authoritative with many advanced concepts for petroleum geologists geochemists geophysicists or engineers engaged in the search for or production of crude oil and natural gas or interested in their habitats and the factors that control them this book is an excellent reference It is recommended without reservation AAPG Bulletin

Algebra and Trigonometry Jay P. Abramson,Valeree Falduto,Rachael Gross (Mathematics teacher),David Lippman,Rick Norwood,Melonie Rasmussen,Nicholas Belloit,Jean-Marie Magnier,Harold Whipple,Christina Fernandez,2015-02-13 The text is suitable for a typical introductory algebra course and was developed to be used flexibly While the breadth of topics may go beyond what an instructor would cover the modular approach and the richness of content ensures that the book meets the needs of a variety of programs Page 1 STOP, THAT and One Hundred Other Sleep Scales Azmeh Shahid,Kate

Wilkinson,Shai Marcu,Colin M Shapiro,2012-01-06 There are at least four reasons why a sleep clinician should be familiar with rating scales that evaluate different facets of sleep First the use of scales facilitates a quick and accurate assessment of a complex clinical problem In three or four minutes the time to review ten standard scales a clinician can come to a broad understanding of the patient in question For example a selection of scales might indicate that an individual is sleepy but not fatigued lacking alertness with no insomnia presenting with no symptoms of narcolepsy or restless legs but showing clear features of apnea exhibiting depression and a history of significant alcohol problems This information can be used to direct the consultation to those issues perceived as most relevant and can even provide a springboard for explaining the benefits of certain treatment approaches or the potential corollaries of allowing the status quo to continue Second rating scales can provide a clinician with an enhanced vocabulary or language improving his or her understanding of each patient In the case of the sleep specialist a scale can help him to distinguish fatigue from sleepiness in a patient or elucidate the differences between sleepiness and alertness which is not merely the inverse of the former Sleep scales are developed by researchers and clinicians who have spent years in their field carefully honing their preferred methods for assessing certain brain states or characteristic features of a condition Thus scales provide clinicians with a repertoire of questions allowing them to draw upon the extensive experience of their colleagues when attempting to tease apart nuanced problems Third some scales are helpful for tracking a patient s progress A particular patient may not remember how alert he felt on a series of different stimulant medications Scale assessments administered periodically over the course of treatment provide an objective record of the intervention allowing the clinician to examine and possibly reassess her approach to the patient Finally for individuals conducting a double blind crossover trial or a straightforward clinical practice audit those who are interested in research will find that their own clinics become a source of great discovery Scales provide standardized measures that allow colleagues across cities and countries to coordinate their practices They enable the replication of previous studies and facilitate the organization and dissemination of new research in a way that is accessible and rapid As the emphasis placed on evidence based care grows a clinician s ability to assess his or her own practice and its relation to the wider medical community becomes invaluable Scales make this kind of standardization possible just as they enable the research efforts that help to formulate those standards The majority of Rating Scales in Sleep and Sleep Disorders 100 Scales for Clinical Practice is devoted to briefly discussing individual scales When possible an example of the scale is provided so that readers may gain a sense of the instrument s content Groundbreaking and the first of its kind to conceptualize and organize the essential scales used in sleep medicine Rating Scales in Sleep and Sleep Disorders 100 Scales for Clinical Practice is an invaluable resource for all clinicians and researchers interested in sleep disorders Exploring America Ray Notgrass,2014

Student Learning in South Asia: Challenges, Opportunities, and Policy Priorities Halil Dundar, Tara Beteille, Michelle Riboud, 2014-07-07 For the past decade most South Asian countries have directed their efforts towards achieving universal access to elementary education While these investments have led to more children being retained in school they have not translated into better learning outcomes This report comprehensively analyzes the performance of South Asian educational systems in terms of student learning It attempts to answer three questions How well do education systems in South Asia perform What determines student learning outcomes What policy options are effective in improving learning outcomes especially given increasing demand and competition for public resources Because learning outcomes and skill acquisition in the region are low in both absolute and relative terms schooling does not translate as it should into better life chances including escape from poverty for many more Nor does schooling contribute to higher productivity and economic growth so that countries in the region find it difficult to accelerate economic and social development Governments in the region now fully realize that they need to direct their attention toward improving quality so that students can aspire to fuller lives as both individuals and labor market participants Merely spending time in school is not enough students need to register a significant gain in both noncognitive and cognitive skills if countries in the region are to reap full returns on their investments and generate gains in employment job creation and productivity To examine what policies hold promise for improving student learning the report reviews evidence from large scale national learning assessments and findings from impact evaluations being conducted in the region It identifies the following strategic priorities for improving learning outcomes in South Asia 1 Make learning outcomes the central goal of education policy 2 Invest in early childhood nutrition 3 Improve teacher effectiveness and accountability 4 Provide additional support to disadvantaged children in early grades 5 Use financing effectively 6 Leverage the contribution of the non state sector and 7 Build learning assessment systems Each of these policy options will need to be integrated within a larger agenda of inclusive economic growth and governance reform to be truly effective Stage 6 Engineering Studies
