Intersectionality in Action Peter Felten, Brooke Barnett, 2023-07-03 Colleges and universities silo diversity and inclusion by creating specific courses to address them or programs to welcome and support people with a range of identities whereas in reality students faculty and staff do not encounter diversity in the fractured ways that match the organizational structures of our institutions We all simultaneously embody a variety of identities with different saliency in different circumstances and times This book offers models for institutions to move intentionally toward intersections of study abroad and multiculturalism of race and gender and religion and of other essential aspects of our educational programs and our students identities to open doors to new possibilities that better prepare our students for life in a diverse world and that allow our institutions to become more efficient and effective as we strive to not simply do things better in our own separate spheres but to do better things by working together across difference Each chapter offers action oriented analysis focusing on particular campus intersections rather than attending to specific demographic groups Chapter authors also build on their own local expertise of doing this work on campuses that often do not have deep pockets or rich histories of such efforts The book is organized into three sections People focuses on diversity broadly defined considering questions about how we recruit and engage the students faculty and staff in the campus community and how we work with governing boards and others to promote inclusive excellence Environment focuses on inclusion including residence life the local community the working and learning environment and external factors and events such as national and international news or town gown relationships Learning focuses on perspective taking and learning about difference in the core curriculum the disciplines and the co curriculum as well as professional development for faculty and staff This ground reaking book helps readers no matter what position they occupy on campus to develop the knowledge and capacities necessary to create inclusive classrooms and is premised on the understanding that identity oppression power and marginalization cannot be addressed by looking solely at single identities

Pain Management and the Opioid Epidemic National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Committee on Pain Management and Regulatory Strategies to Address Prescription Opioid Abuse, 2017-09-28

Drug overdose driven largely by overdose related to the use of opioids is now the leading cause of unintentional injury death in the United States The ongoing opioid crisis lies at the intersection of two public health challenges reducing the burden of suffering from pain and containing the rising toll of the harms that can arise from the use of opioid medications Chronic pain and opioid use disorder both represent complex human conditions affecting millions of Americans and causing untold disability and loss of function In the context of the growing opioid problem the U S Food and Drug Administration FDA launched an Opioids Action Plan in early 2016 As part of this plan the FDA asked the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine to convene a committee to update the state of the science on pain research care and education and to identify actions the FDA and others can take to respond to the opioid epidemic with a particular focus on informing FDA s development of a formal method for incorporating individual and societal considerations into its risk benefit framework for opioid approval and monitoring
