Parenting Matters National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Supporting the Parents of Young Children, 2016-11-21 Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent child dyad and the environment of the family which includes all primary caregivers are at the foundation of children s well being and healthy development From birth children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life when a child s brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills charting a trajectory for their health and well being during childhood and beyond The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves For instance parenting can enrich and give focus to parents lives generate stress or calm and create any number of emotions including feelings of happiness sadness fulfillment and anger Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments These include a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood increases in funding for programs and services for families changing demographics of the U S population and greater diversity of family structure

Additionally parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge attitudes and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0 8 universal preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge attitudes and practices and barriers to and facilitators for parents use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders for promoting the wide scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy research and practice in the United States Fabry Disease Deborah Elstein,Gheona Altarescu,Michael Beck,2010-08-02 Fabry disease is an X linked inborn error of metabolism wherein deficiency of a lysosomal enzyme results in systemic deposition of glycosphingolipids Storage deposition and hence pathological disease occurs preferentially in renal glomerular and tubular epithelial cells myocardial cells heart valve fibrocytes neurons of dorsal root ganglia and in endothelial smooth muscle cells of blood vessels Thus Fabry disease is a multi system disorder albeit with considerable phenotypic heterogeneity in onset and in severity however it is progressive exhibits extensive morbidity and is life threatening Within the past two decades there has been a radical change in the natural course Fabry disease by virtue of the availability of specific enzyme replacement therapy Moreover there has been a concerted effort to better understand the underlying pathology and equally to identify patients prior to the onset of irreversible end organ damage It is to be hoped that the future for patients with Fabry disease can be viewed with greater albeit guarded optimism This state of the art textbook attempts to bridge the span of pre clinical studies clinical finding and management options in a readable but comprehensive manner for the medical practitioner as well as the interested non medical reader
