Coming Home to Eat Gary Paul Nabhan, 2002 Gary Paul Nabhan shares what he learned after spending a year eating only foods that were grown, fished or gathered within two hundred miles of his home Coming Home to Eat: The Pleasures and Politics of Local Food Gary Paul Nabhan, 2009-06-23 Food The Forgotten Pollinators Stephen L. Buchmann, Gary Paul Nabhan, 2012-06-22 Consider this Without interaction between animals and flowering plants the seeds and fruits that make up nearly eighty percent of the human diet would not exist In The Forgotten Pollinators Stephen L. Buchmann one of the world's leading authorities on bees and pollination and Gary Paul Nabhan award winning writer and renowned crop ecologist explore the vital but little appreciated relationship between plants and the animals they depend on for reproduction bees beetles butterflies hummingbirds moths bats and countless other animals some widely recognized and other almost unknown Scenes from around the globe examining island flora and fauna on the Galapagos counting bees in the Panamanian rain forest witnessing an ancient honey hunting ritual in Malaysia bring to life the hidden relationships between plants and animals and demonstrate the ways in which human society affects and is affected by those relationships Buchmann and Nabhan combine vignettes from the field with expository discussions of ecology botany and crop science to present a lively and fascinating account of the ecological and cultural context of plant pollinator relationships More than any other natural process plant pollinator relationships offer vivid examples of the connections between endangered species and threatened habitats The authors explain how human induced changes in pollinator populations caused by overuse of chemical pesticides unbridled development and conversion of natural areas into monocultural cropland can have a ripple effect on disparate species ultimately leading to a cascade of linked extinctions Chasing Chiles Gary Paul Nabhan, Kraig Kraft, Kurt Michael Friese, 2011-03-16 Chasing Chiles looks at both the future of place based foods and the effects of climate change on agriculture through the lens of the chile pepper from the farmers who cultivate this iconic crop to the cuisines and cultural traditions in which peppers play a huge role Why chile peppers Both a spice and a vegetable chile peppers have captivated imaginations and taste buds for thousands of years Native to Mesoamerica and the New World chiles are currently grown on every continent since their relatively recent introduction to Europe in the early 1500s via Christopher Columbus Chiles are delicious dynamic and very diverse they have been rapidly adopted adapted and assimilated into numerous world cuisines and while malleable to a degree certain heirloom varieties are deeply tied to place and culture but now accelerating climate change may be scrambling their terroir Over a year long journey three pepper loving gastronomists an agroecologist a chef and an ethnobotanist set out to find the real stories of America's rarest heirloom chile varieties and learn about the changing climate from farmers and other people who live by the pepper and who lately have been adapting to shifting growing conditions and weather patterns They put a face on an issue that has been made far too abstract for our own good Chasing Chiles is not your archetypal book about climate change with facts and computer models delivered by a distant narrator On the contrary these three dedicated chileheads look and listen sit down to eat and get stories and recipes from on the ground in farmers fields local cafes and the desert scrub hillsides across North America From the Sonoran Desert to Santa Fe and St Augustine the two oldest cities in the U S from the marshes of Avery Island in Cajun Louisiana to the thin limestone soils of the Yucatan this book looks at how and why climate change will continue to affect our palates and our producers and how it already has
