Play At The Center Of The Curriculum

Play at the Center of the Curriculum Judith VanHoorn,Patricia Monighan Nourot,Barbara Scales,Keith Rodriguez Alward,2014-04-10
The leading text in the field Play at the Center of the Curriculum seamlessly combines the features of a text on play and development with the features of an early childhood curriculum text to present a comprehensive cogent rationale for placing play at the center of a balanced curriculum Ideal for those who want to engage children in a developmental zone where children and teachers are learning from and with each other the authors put play at the center of a balanced curriculum that includes spontaneous guided and directed play as well as teacher planned instruction They describe how knowledgeable teachers use a wide repertoire of strategies to orchestrate the flow from spontaneous play to guided play to more subject oriented instruction and back to play This thoroughly updated Sixth Edition interweaves anecdotes of children s play theories of play and development empirical evidence from research and practical instructional strategies to give students a clear look at play and the curriculum

Play at the Center of the Curriculum Judith Lieberman Van Hoorn,1993 This resource examines the natural connection between play and a young child s development It advocates that play should be an integrated part of the early childhood curriculum and then demonstrates how to draw both the methods and the content of a successful curriculum from children s spontaneous play Anecdotes of children s play theories of play and development and instructional strategies are interwoven throughout the book Early childhood educators

Play at the Center of the Curriculum Judith Lieberman Van Hoorn,1999 This resource examines the natural connection between play and a young child s development and learning The authors advocate that play should be at the heart of the early childhood curriculum and then demonstrate how to draw both the methods and the content of a successful curriculum from children s spontaneous play Anecdotes of children s play theories of play and development and instructional strategies are interwoven throughout the book This book takes a unique position asking not only How can play support curriculum but also How can curriculum support play

Play at the Center of the Curriculum: Pearson New International Edition PDF eBook Judith VanHoorn,Patricia Monighan Nourot,Barbara Scales,2013-08-29 Play at the Center of the Curriculum is a resource for those who want to engage children in a developmental zone where children and teachers are learning Current and future teachers are guided in methods of supporting children s progress through play This book carefully blends theory and practice As seasoned teachers we demonstrate how to draw both the methods and the content of a successful curriculum from children s play We interweave anecdotes of children s play theories of play and development and instructional strategies that place play at the center of the curriculum

Play at the Center of the Curriculum Judith Lieberman Van Hoorn,2007 For Play courses or Early Childhood Curriculum courses in Early Childhood Education departments and Child and Family Studies departments This book discusses the value of play in diverse early childhood classrooms and how curriculum can support play Key changes to this edition include the integration of standards and examples of how encouraging certain types of play can meet standards expanded coverage of cultural diversity and supporting play in children with special needs and expanded coverage of integrating the content areas More than any other books on play this text focuses on how content areas can be taught and standards met through play

Play at the Center of the Curriculum Judith Van Hoorn,2003

Play and Creativity at the Center of Curriculum and Assessment Lindsey H. Russo,2013 The learning experiences of young children cannot be conveniently separated into the areas of cognitive social emotional and physical development They are integrated and interdependent This balance can be achieved through creative interactive play that supports and scaffolds all developmental and content areas of the curriculum Despite the strength of supportive theory and research we are experiencing the gradual elimination of play and creative experiences from early childhood classrooms in the USA The 2001 No Child Left Behind legislation in the USA emphasizes an academic orientation and focuses early childhood curricula upon academic skills such as reading writing and numeracy However the problem is not simply pedagogical strategy or philosophical stance The way in which a curriculum is implemented is also influenced by teachers perceptions of play and creativity In 2009 I began a longitudinal study that follows the pilot class of a new Independent elementary school in New York City as it adds a grade level each year and whose curricular framework is based upon play and creativity This paper identifies the values mission and model of the school It also explores and documents how the curriculum is being developed to support and scaffold increased academic expectations the role of teachers and children in the implementation of the curriculum and the changing perspectives perceptions and expectations of parents and teachers

From Play to Practice Marcia L. Nell,Walter F. Drew,Deborah E. Bush,2013 Describes play workshop experiences that give educators a deeper understanding of play based learning and illustrate the power of play
