Lexical Input Processing and Vocabulary Learning Joe Barcroft, 2015-12-15 This book focuses on theory, research, and practice related to lexical input processing (lex IP), an exciting field exploring how learners allocate their limited processing resources when exposed to words and lexical phrases in the input. Unit 1 specifies parameters of lex IP research among other levels of input processing, as well as key components: form, meaning, mapping, and contexts. Unit 2 highlights theoretical advances such as the type of processing, resource allocation, the TOPRA model, consistent with research on tasks, sentence writing, word copying, word retrieval that learners may perform during vocabulary learning. Unit 3 highlights patterns in partial word form learning and input-based effects, including the value of increased exposure, drawbacks of presenting vocabulary in semantic sets, and advantages of input enhancement, particularly with regard to increasing talker speaking style and speaking rate variability in spoken input. The book unifies a range of research pertinent to lex IP, summarizes theoretical and instructional implications, and proposes intriguing new directions for future research.
