

Tips on How to Write Editorial Articles

Dr N. Mallikarjuna Rao
Editor in Chief

An editorial article can be about anything and from any standpoint. Articles come in all shapes and sizes. They are in Medical Journals, Newspapers, Magazines, and Posted on the Internet. They cover any and every topic imaginable. As long as you have an opinion and can support it with facts, you have the makings of an interesting piece. We all have opinions, right? Yet not all of us are editorial writers and not all editorials are worth reading. Despite the wide variety, there are guidelines to write clinical oriented articles that can help you improve your articles' readability.

PLAN AHEAD

Too many people begin writing their topic with only a vague sense of opinion, never honing, or refining, that opinion into something sharp and distinctive. Be sure to have a solid grasp of what you're arguing and why you're arguing. What are the factors that inspired you to write on this issue? Without planning, your article is bound to come across as disorganized and difficult to read. Even short articles require planning to be as readable as possible.

Brainstorming is a great technique to help you figure out what topics you want to cover in your article. Think about your topic. From the ideas you get, decide which topic is most important and why you've chosen it first. For example, if you're writing an article about Prostate Cancer, you could write about the causes for Prostate Cancer, History, Markers for identification, many types of markers for Prostate Cancer..... The list goes on.

If you want your article to delve deeply into one topic, make sure you research & reviewed the complete literature and correlated with the previous researches in case if it is an original work.

If your article is more of an overview, you have a bit more freedom with the number of topics you choose. You may find that you'll have to brainstorm more than once to narrow down your topics sufficiently. If you chose History of Prostate Cancer from the above example, you might brainstorm "subtopics" such as the Prostate Cancer of a certain country, decade, or its prevalence. Again, depending on the aim of your article, you might choose only one topic to explore or several.

RESEARCH YOUR TOPICS

Most people read articles because they want to learn something about a particular subject. Your readers will be able to sense if your article is backed up with fact or not, so do your homework before you write.

Your articles will be much more interesting if they are well researched. You'll also find you will have many more quality details to incorporate into your articles if you do adequate research first, and the more captivating facts you include, the more loyal readers you'll have.

MINE THE DATA

An editorial is only as good as its facts. Sure, you may think that HIV can't be transmitted through mosquitoes is wrong and worthy of
