From Hypertension to Heart Failure Michael Böhm,John H. Laragh,Manfred Zehender,2012-12-06 Arterial hypertension coronary heart disease and heart failure are the commonest cardiovascular conditions to present in clinical practice Over the past few years it has become increasingly clear that they are closely and causally interrelated and that their relationship can have a significant bearing on prognosis Epidemiological studies have shown that arterial hypertension is one of the most important risk factors for developing heart failure Only one in four patients with hypertension is adequately managed and in 50% of cases the hypertension has not been recognised or treated Patients with pre existing hypertension who go on to suffer an acute myocardial infarction have usually not previously had typical angina symptoms the infarct territory is larger life threatening arrhythmias are commoner and hence in hospital mortality and long term prognosis are markedly worse The presence of raised blood pressure in the post infarct phase doubles the risk of manifest heart failure The close relationship between hypertension coronary heart disease and heart failure makes the choice of therapeutic strategy particularly important Agents and classes of agents that have prognostic value in all three conditions should be considered first as synergy might result in additional benefits In such patients this sort of therapeutic decision making might have further advantages The use of these agents may prevent complications which are not yet clinically obvious such as heart failure
