Shoulson,2004-05-11 In the early modern period the religious fervor of the Reformation and Counter Reformation social unrest and millenarianism all seemed to foster greater anti Judaism in Christian Europe yet the increased intolerance was also accompanied by more intimate and complex forms of interaction between Christians and Jews Printing trade and travel combined to bring those from both sides of the religious divide into closer contact than ever before while growing interest in magic and the Kabbalah encouraged Christians to study Hebrew in addition to Latin and Greek In Hebraica Veritas Christian Hebraists and the Study of Judaism in Early Modern Europe noted scholars trace how these early modern encounters played key roles in defining attitudes toward personal national and religious identity in Western culture As Christians increasingly patronized Jewish scholars in person and in print Christian Hebraism flourished The twelve essays assembled here address the important but often neglected subject of the early modern encounter between Christians and Jews They illustrate how this involvement shaped each group's self perception and sense of otherness and contributed to the emergence of the modern study of cultural anthropology comparative religion and Jewish studies But the chapters also reveal how the encounter challenged traditional religious beliefs fostering the skepticism toleration and irreligion conventionally associated with the Enlightenment Many of the Christian Hebraists described in these essays were linguists and textual critics and their work highlights the ambiguous role played by language and texts in transmitting natural and divine truth It was during the early modern period that numerous concepts underpinning modern Western secular society came into existence and as Hebraica Veritas shows the subject of Christian Hebraism has direct relevance to understanding the intellectual changes and challenges characterizing the transition from the ancient to the modern world
